Teaching Chinas Lost Generation:

Teaching China's Lost Generation Tani E. Barlow, Donald M. Lowe, 1987 Finding China's Lost Generation John Israel, 2023-05-05 In December 1968 Mao Zedong proclaimed that China's educated urban youth should move to the countryside to be reeducated by the poor and lower middle peasants Some seventeen million who responded to his call spent the better part of a decade laboring in remote and impoverished regions Returning to the cities in the late 1970s undereducated unemployed and manifestly unprepared to contribute to China's post Maoist future the rusticated youth were dubbed the Lost Generation How then could China transform itself into an economic and military behemoth without the support of an entire generation of educated men and women A close look at a group of young Beijingers suggests that at least some of the rusticated millions reentered urban life with assets that enabled them to play a creative role The Beijing Fifty five were atypical insofar as they had volunteered to carve rubber plantations out of a tropical wilderness on China's southwest border a year before the wave of involuntary recruits However their struggle to survive cultural political and physical challenges was typical Drawing from the spoken and written testimony of the Fifty five this book shows in dramatic detail how The Lost Generation survived the tribulations of the Mao years to help build today's China China Bound, Revised Social Science Research Council, National Academy of Sciences, American Council of Learned Societies, Committee on Scholarly Communication with China, Linda A. Evasdottir,2007-10-01 In the west the idea of autonomy is often associated with a sense of freedom a self interested state of being unfettered by rules or obligations to others This original anthropological study explores a type of obedient autonomy that thrives on setbacks blossoms as more rules are imposed and flourishes in adversity Obedient Autonomy analyzes this model and explains its precepts through examining the specialized and highly organized discipline of archaeology in China The book follows Chinese students on their journey to becoming full fledged archaeologists in a bureaucracy saturated environment Often required to travel in teams to the countryside archaeologists are uniquely obliged to overcome divisions among themselves between themselves and their peasant workers and between themselves and bureaucratic officials This analysis reveals how these interactions provide teachers of archaeology with stories used to foster obedient autonomy in their students Moreover it demonstrates how this form of autonomy enables a person to order and control their future careers in what appears to be a disorderly and uncertain world A masterly contextualization of archaeology in China Obedient Autonomy shows how the discipline has accommodated itself to a Chinese social structure and uncovers the moral ethical political and economic underpinnings of that context It will be accessible to students of anthropology even as it will provoke Euro American archaeologists and interest social theorists of science philosophers gender theorists and students of Chinese society
