Literacy

In selecting our articles, we looked for studies that conceptualized literacy as a whole. The research included in this section covers a wide range of literacy learners. We included studies focusing on early childhood, childhood, adolescent, and adult literacy learners. Most of the articles selected came from the United States of America, Australia, and Africa. Priority was given to studies related to community literacy, basic literacy, counter-stories, and different ways of knowing and being literate. (Krischa-Gail Martin-Kerr, lead contributor)

- Examines women's experiences of functional adult literacy as a gateway to financial progress. Analyzes focus group discussions, in-depth interviews, observations, and document reviews of 85 participants. Finds that functional adult literacy brings out women's individual and collective agency through conscientization concepts and dialogue. Concludes that functional literacy training improves women's livelihoods.
- Brown, E., Rosenthal, J., & Dymega, N. (2018). Teaching strategies to develop a family-school literacy partnership. International Journal of Whole Schooling, 14(1), 31–56.
- Explores a first-grade team's efforts to develop a family-school literacy partnership. Reports on a teacher-administered survey of families that revealed unexpected at-home literacy practices. Highlights the finding that teacher communication may have created confusion for parents around which books brought home as homework were appropriate for independent reading versus read-aloud. Additionally, notes that families reported less at-home reading than was expected by teachers. Argues that teachers should make home literacy expectations clear so that parents understand how to help their children.
