The United States Government doesn't appear very anxious to claim its property does it sir asked Captain Jack Benson The speaker was a boy of sixteen attired in a uniform much after the pattern commonly worn by yacht captains The insignia of naval rank were conspicuously absent Now that I've had the good luck to sell the Pollard to the Navy responded Jacob Farnum principal owner of the shipbuilding yard I'm not disposed to grumble if the Government prefers to store its property here for a while Yet the young shipbuilder he was a man in his early thirties who had inherited this shipbuilding business from his father allowed his eyes to twinkle in a way that suggested there was something else behind his words Jack Benson saw that twinkle but he did not ask questions If the shipbuilder knew more than he was prepared to tell it was not for his young captain to ask for information that was not volunteered The second boy present also in uniform Hal Hastings by name had not spoken in five minutes That was like Hal He was the engineer of the submarine torpedo boat Pollard Jack was captain of the same craft and could do all the talking Jacob Farnum sat back sideways at his rolltop desk On top of the desk lay stacked a voluminous though neat pile of papers letters telegrams and memoranda that some rival builders of submarine torpedo boats might have been willing to pay much for the privilege of examining For at the present moment there was fierce competition in the air between rival American builders of submarine fighting craft designed for the United States Navy Even foreign builders and inventors were clamoring for recognition Yet just now the reorganized Pollard Submarine Boat Company stood at the top of the line It had made the last sale to the United States Navy Department At this moment out in the little harbor that was a part of the shipyard the Pollard rode gently at anchor She was the first submarine torpedo boat built at this yard after the designs of David Pollard the inventor a close personal friend of Jacob Farnum Moreover the second boat named the Farnum had just been launched and put in commission ready at an hour s notice to take the sea in search of floating enemies of the United States comprehensive study of the Bible that covers creation, the life and death of Jesus, his Resurrection, Ascension into Heaven, and life after Jesus in the Bible and Revelations. It was a collection of the author's teaching notes published to educate mainly children in simple terms. Favell Lee Mortimer was a British Evangelical writer of educational books for children. Bevan supervised children's religious education on her father's estates, and her interest in academic writing developed from that experience. She created her own method of teaching children to read that was based on flash cards rather than traditional books.
