planning on the civilian side To enhance program effectiveness the evaluation recommends that the Bank Group help the government develop a comprehensive long term human resources strategy for the civilian sectors focus on strategic analytical work in sectors that are high priorities for the government assist in the development of local government institutions and in the interim support the development of a viable system for service delivery at subnational levels assist in transforming the National Solidarity Program into a more sustainable financial and institutional model to consolidate its gains help strengthen the regulatory environment for private sector investment and scale up IFC and MIGA support to the private sector

Building a New Afghanistan Robert I. Rotberg, 2007-08-29 In the wake of the Taliban nightmare Afghanistan must tackle serious problems before it can emerge as a confident independent nation Security in this battered state continues to deteriorate suicide bombings convoy ambushes and insurgent attacks are all too common Effective state building will depend upon eliminating the national security crisis and enhancing the rule of law This book offers a blueprint for moving the embattled nation toward greater democracy and prosperity Robert Rotberg and his colleagues argue that the future success of state building in Afghanistan depends on lessening its dependence on opium and enhancing its economic status Many of Afghanistan s security problems are related to poppy growing opium and heroin production and drug trafficking Building a New Afghanistan suggests controversial new alternatives to immediate eradication which is foolish and counter productive These options include monetary incentives for growing wheat a viable local crop Greater wheat production would feed hungry Afghans while reducing narco trafficking and the terror that comes with it Integrating this land locked country into the Central Asia or greater Eurasia economy would open up trading partnerships with its northern and western neighbors as well as with Pakistan India and possibly China Developing a sense of common purpose among citizens would benefit the economy and could help to unite the nation Perhaps most important bolstering better governance in Afghanistan is necessary in order to eliminate chaos and corruption and enact nationwide reforms Fresh and insightful Building a New Afghanistan shows what the country s leadership and the international community should do to resolve dangerous issues and bolster a still fragile state Contributors include Cindy Fazey University of Liverpool Ali Jalali former minister of the interior Afghanistan and National Defense University Hekmat Karzai Centre for Conflict and Peace Studies Afghanistan and Institute of Defense and Strategic Studies Singapore Alistair J McKechnie World Bank Country Director for Afghanistan Paula Newburg Skidmore College and S Frederick Starr Central Asia Caucasus Institute and School of Advanced International Studies Johns Hopkins University

Subnational Administration in Afghanistan, Volume 1. Assessment and Recommendations for Action Weltbank, 2013 This report proposes a two pronged strategy of government action for securing progress in sub national administration using the structures and discipline that form the distinctive heritage of the Afghan state One strand calls for the center to commit itself to delivering some basic support for provinces districts and provincial municipalities in their functional role as service provider or commissioner and in their political role as local representative of the unitary state. The second strand of the strategy is comprised of tailored incentives for sub national administrations that reflect their institutional and historical roots. The task is to make this de concentrated system work through effective incentives at the sub national level that will entail the provision of valued resources that are triggered by simple measures of administrative effort not performance and tailoring the incentives to suit the specific situation of the administration with distinct differences between the incentives provided to provinces districts and provincial municipalities. To this end the report proposes unconditional commitments from the Government in Kabul to complete the pension reform i.e. build and strengthen capacity within the central administration entities increasing Treasury authority and establishing procedures to strengthen the budgetary process. Likewise it proposes to restore provincial infrastructure and priority support for provincial health and education departments. By designing specific project support it is intended to help shift the focus towards pro province and pro service delivery objectives.

Governance in Post-Conflict Societies Derick W. Brinkerhoff, 2007-01-24 This volume explores questions of rebuilding governance in post conflict societies from an interdisciplinary perspective focusing on three interconnected gaps that arise in fragile states: deficits in legitimacy, effectiveness and security.

Afghanistan--state Building, Sustaining Growth, and Reducing Poverty, 2005-01-01 Afghanistan has come a long way since emerging from major conflict in late 2001. The economy has recovered strongly growing by nearly 50% cumulatively in the last two years not including drugs. Some three million internally and externally displaced Afghans have returned to their country. More than four million children, a third of them girls, are in school and immunization campaigns have achieved considerable success. The Government has supported good economic performance by following prudent macroeconomic policies and it has made extraordinary efforts to develop key national programs and to revive social services like education and health. Nevertheless Afghanistan remains one of the poorest countries in the world in terms of both per capita incomes and social indicators with large gender gaps. The difficult challenge of poverty reduction is made even more difficult by continuing insecurity, weak rule of law and narcotics. Afghanistan: State Building, Sustaining Growth and Reducing Poverty provides a greater understanding of the core challenges that lie ahead for Afghanistan and key priorities for national reconstruction. The Afghan economy has been shaped by more than two decades of debilitating conflict and has some very unusual features which this study analyzes. The authors argue that the country must break out of the vicious cycle that would keep it insecure, fragmented, politically weakly governed, poor, dominated by the illicit economy and a hostage to the drug industry. The study presents key elements for a breakthrough in the next two years but the daunting agenda will require strong commitment, actions and persistence on the part of the Government and robust support from the international community.

Andrews, 2006 Formal pension systems are an important means of reducing poverty among the aged In recent years however pension reform has become a pressing matter as demographic aging poor administration early retirement and unaffordable benefits have strained pension balances and overall public finances Pension systems have become a source of macroeconomic instability a constraint to economic growth and an ineffective and or inequitable provider of retirement income The World Bank Research Program 2004 World Bank, 2005 The World Bank's research is intended to address critical issues and problems facing member governments in developing and transition economies How can the governments of the poorest countries generate enough revenue to provide the education and health services essential to reducing poverty and promoting growth and development How can poor countries attract investors to build the infrastructure their economies need How can they develop systems to bring clean water to the 2 billion people without it today How can they train teachers and bring to class the 115 million children who have not yet received any education And how can rich countries be persuaded to lower market barriers helping to reverse the decline in export prices for poor countries that has left them earning less from trade today than in the 1970s These are the types of questions that are addressed in this edition of The World Bank Research Program Abstracts from Current Studies This volume reports on research projects initiated under way or completed from July 2003 through June 2004 It covers 151 research projects on several broad development related issues including agriculture health education environment infrastructure investment
