

in these articles. With individual concerns for profit-and-power outweighing the long-term success of societies and environments, the worldwide, market-driven economy brings about increasingly centralized and monopolized ownership of land, resources, money, and, ultimately, power.

In this volume, the authors effectively demonstrate the impacts that social, political, and economic inequalities have on local-level systems. To a lesser extent, they point out where one should be looking in order to change these unequal relations. They paint a complex picture of problems that have led to, and continue to, characterize these types of inequalities. However, no in-depth explorations of practical solutions are provided. Although the primary goal of this volume is to demonstrate the causes of environmental destruction (and these points are well made), it would have provided more balance to the collection if there were to be at least one full article that critically examined a specific case regarding solutions. Whether or not that case was successful or unsuccessful, it still would have allowed the authors to more clearly lay out their vision for how endeavors such as these should proceed, as well as underscore how they have failed in the past. This is a point that Durham remedies when, in the conclusion he states that "a key implication of these papers is that further research is warranted both to expand the theoretical framework of political ecology and to test its applicability in particular contexts" (p. 262).

There exists no easy solution and no one aspect of the equation can be changed that will subsequently fix the remaining problems. Due to this, the few solutions that the authors do mention remain broad reaching and complex. In part this is because the paradigm of political ecology from which they are operating is still not fully articulated in an anthropological context. It is with some optimism that the authors note the increased application of political ecology since the 1980s. While admiring the attempts of earlier work from the 1960s and 1970s undertaken by such scholars as Clifford Geertz, John Cole, and Eric Wolf, Durham ultimately concludes that "these few case studies fell short of providing analytic tools worthy of a general new approach" (p. 249). In summary, because of its examination of power differentials, as well as its clear and systematic presentation on the introduction of political ecology to anthropology, this volume will prove beneficial for anthropologists and equally useful for geographers, political scientists, environmental scientists, ecologists, and economists alike.

The Subsistence Perspective: Beyond The Globalized Economy

Veronika Bennholdt-Thomsen and Maria Mies, New York: Zed Books, 2000.

Reviewed by K. Ravi Srinivas, Madurai, India.

The authors, well known for their work on women and development, call for a radical perspective on globalization and industrial society. They argue that a subsistence perspective is the alternative to the problems created in the name of development. Subsistence is based on the strength of the people and is a perspective that puts nature and peoples' needs before the market and the accumulation of wealth and capital. The authors build on the theoretical basis developed in their earlier works. They argue that traditional responses by trade unions and the left are no answer to the problems of the modern world. Further, they argue that the globalized economy poses new challenges and that the subsistence perspective is the alternative to the globalization, free trade, and the penetration of market forces into every aspect of life.

They point out that, even in the West, subsistence production has a long history. Further, subsistence production continues even today in many parts of the world, particularly in developing nations. According to the authors, "The concept includes many things that are subsumed under head ingrowth as regionalization, local economy, self-sufficiency, new commons, alternative lifestyles, a caring economy, a living economy, the third way" (p. 20). The book is written in support of the subsistence perspective and is also a critique of globalization and the modern industrial society. The authors try to prove that subsistence perspective is not just

Seeking Environmental Justice, 2008-01-01 The 5th Environmental Justice and Global Citizenship conference was held at Oxford UK in 2006 This decidedly trans disciplinary international event attracted participants from traditionally separate academic perspectives each ambassadors for their disciplines and each seeking and making connections with other disciplines and other understandings Some of the presentations from this conference have been further developed for inclusion in this book yielding 14 chapters of paradigmatic richness covering issues ranging from environmental education and the nature of global multinational corporations to the role of environmental activism and consideration of how democratically representative some campaigns may be This book will be of great interest to anyone working in these areas as well as an excellent introductory journey for those seeking to become pan paradigmatic

Who Will Build the Ark? Lola Seaton, Benjamin Kunkel, 2023-06-27 What ecological politics should the left propose In Who Will Build the Ark leading radical thinkers debate left alternatives to runaway global heating capitalist crisis and wider environmental breakdown clarifying the stakes in today's key disputes between Green New Deal supporters and proponents of degrowth In a series of landmark texts first published by New Left Review Herman Daly and Benjamin Kunkel discusses the possibility of an egalitarian steady state economy while Robert Pollin warns against the worldwide slump degrowth could bring and calls instead for a single issue campaign 2 per cent of global GDP dedicated to the switch to renewable energy as the swiftest solution to the emissions crisis Nancy Fraser envisages an eco socialist exit from capitalism's multifold crises while Troy Vettese advocates eco austerity and half earth rewilding Lola Seaton draws out the strategic implications of these contested perspectives in a set of unavoidable green questions In the realm of contemporary politics Alyssa Battistoni writes on the dead end of COP diplomacy C dric Durand asks whether energy shortages will derail the transition away from fossil fuels and Thomas Meaney compares Green New Deal proposals to the pinched reality of Biden's Inflation Reduction Act The world's major powers accept the likelihood of dangerous climate change yet seem incapable of averting it Can radical green models generate the social leverage needed to do so Or as Mike Davis puts it Who will build the Ark

Integral Dynamics Ronnie Lessem, Alexander Schieffer, Samuel D. Rima, 2016-05-23 The theory of integral dynamics is based on the view that the development of individual leaders or entrepreneurs requires the simultaneous development of institutions and societies It seeks a specific way forward for each society fundamentally different from but drawing on its past Nearly every natural science has been transformed from an analytically based approach to a dynamic one now it is time for society and culture to follow suit locally and globally Each culture discipline and person is incomplete and is in need of others in order to develop and evolve This book sets out a curriculum for a new integral trans cultural and trans disciplinary area of study inclusive of but extending beyond economics and enterprise It embraces a trans personal perspective linking self with community enterprise and society and focusing on the vital relationship between local identity and global integrity For the government policy maker the enlightened business practitioner and the student and researcher into economics and enterprise the new discipline is set out here in complete detail by a multi national team of Gower s Transformation and Innovation Series authors Illuminated with examples relating the conceptual to the practical this is a text not for a pre modern modern or even post modern era but for what has been called our trans modern age

Understanding Globalization Robert K. Schaeffer, 2003 This best selling text vividly shows how political and economic changes affect people s lives in different settings around the world Globalization the author argues is not completely new Instead the current wave of globalization builds on international institutions created just after World War II and was given new impetus by policies introduced in the 1970s and 80s The new edition has five new chapters as well as updates and changes throughout Visit our website for sample chapters

Rethinking African Agriculture Goran Hyden, Kazuhiko Sugimura, Tadasu Tsuruta, 2020-07-20 Rethinking African Agriculture argues that rural communities in Africa are still shaped by non agrarian factors both in livelihood strategy and social formation This volume renews and deepens the research on the African peasantry by offering a fresh perspective drawn from the hitherto largely unknown Japanese research on the subject The ethnographic fieldwork focuses not only on the micro environment of the producers but also the broader historical context in which they live and work The contributors argue that in comparison with other regions of the world Africa has never passed through an agrarian revolution that would effectively change the mode of production from within Modernization efforts from the outside have fallen far short of the ambition to transform agriculture in Africa Rural Africa is still largely a natural society characterized by non agrarian features as evident in people s livelihood social organization and farming systems This book will be of interest to social scientists and anthropologists focusing on African development agriculture and agrarian societies

In the Way of Development Mario Blaser, Harvey A. Feit, Glenn McRae, 2004 Authored as a result of a remarkable collaboration between indigenous people s own leaders other social activists and scholars from a wide range of disciplines this volume explores what is happening today to indigenous peoples as they are enmeshed almost inevitably in the remorseless expansion of the modern economy and development at the behest of the pressures of the market place and government It is particularly timely given the rise in criticism of free market capitalism generally as well as of development The volume seeks to capture the complex power laden often contradictory features of indigenous agency and relationships It shows how peoples do not just resist or react to the pressures of market and state but also initiate and sustain life projects of their own which embody local history and incorporate plans to improve their social and economic ways of living      Routledge International Encyclopedia of Women Cheris Kramarae, Dale Spender, 2004-04-16 For a full list of entries and contributors sample entries and more visit the Routledge International Encyclopedia of Women website Featuring comprehensive global coverage of women s issues and concerns from violence and sexuality to feminist theory the Routledge International Encyclopedia of Women brings the field into the new millennium In over 900 signed A Z entries from US and Europe Asia the Americas Oceania and the Middle East the women who pioneered the field from its inception collaborate with the new scholars who are shaping the future of women s studies to create the new standard work for anyone who needs information on women related subjects      Urban Food Production for Ecosocialism Salvatore Engel-Di Mauro, George Martin, 2021-09-05 This book explores the critical role of urban food production in strengthening communities and in building ecosocialism It integrates theory and practice drawing on several local case studies from seven countries across four continents China Cuba Ghana Italy Tanzania the UK and the US Research shows that the term urban agriculture overstates the limited food growing potential in cities due to a shortage of land required for growing grains the basic human food staple For this reason the book suggests urban cultivation as an appropriate term which indicates social and political progress achieved through combined labours of urbanites to produce food It examines how these collaborative food growing efforts help raise local social capital foster community organisation and create ecological awareness in order to promote urban food production while also ensuring environmental sustainability This book illustrates how urban cultivation constitutes a potentially important aspect of urban ecosystems as well as offers solutions to current environmental problems It recentres attention to the global South and debunks Eurocentric narratives challenging capitalist commercial food growing regimes and encouraging ecosocialist food growing practices Written in an accessible style this book is recommended reading about an emergent issue which will interest students and scholars of environmental studies geography sociology urban studies politics and economics      Faith Seeking Conviviality Samuel E. Ewell III, 2019-12-30 Faith Seeking Conviviality traces the journey of a U S missionary into Brazil and beyond seeking to be faithfully present while also questioning the default settings of good intentions Taking Ivan Illich as the primary theological guide on that journey Faith Seeking Conviviality narrates the discovery of a renewed imagination for Christian mission that arises as a response to two persistent questions First given the colonial history of Christian missionary expansion on what basis do we go on fulfilling the Great Commission Matt 28 16 20 as Christ s disciples A second question intimately related to the first is What makes it possible to embody a distinctively Christian presence that is missionary without being manipulative In doing theology with and after Ivan Illich Faith Seeking Conviviality does not offer a pull off the shelf model for mission but rather a framework for embodying the incarnational logic of mission that entails a convivial turn delinking missionary discipleship from the lure of techniques and institutional dependence in order to receive and to share the peace of Christ

relationally Nature for Sale Giovanna Ricoveri, 2013-06-20 Uncovering the rich heritage of common ownership which existed before the dominance of capitalist property relations Giovanna Ricoveri argues that the subsistence commons of the past can be reinvented today to provide an alternative to the current destructive economic order Ricoveri outlines the distinct features of common ownership as it has existed in history through cooperatives sustainable use of natural resources and direct democracy In doing so she shows how it is possible to provide goods and services which are not commodities exchanged on the capitalistic market something still demonstrated today in village communities across the global South Tracing the erosion of the commons from the European enclosures at the dawn of the Industrial Revolution to the new enclosures of modern capitalism the book concludes by arguing that a new commons is needed today It will be essential reading for activists as well as students and academics in history politics economics and development studies Power, Resistance and Conflict in the Contemporary World Athina Karatzogianni, Andrew Robinson, 2009-10-16 This book examines issues of organisation in resistance movements discussing topics including the integration of the world system the intersection of networks with discourses of identity and the possibility of social transformation Drawing on a number of theorists including Deleuze and Guattari authors Athina Karatzogianni and Andrew Robinson seek to reinterpret World Systems Theory in order to engage with issues of power resistance and conflict in the contemporary world Discussing contemporary scholarship in global politics the authors consider new and developing concepts including global cities bifurcations hegemonic transitions the relationship between capitalism and the state the position of East Asia and active and reactive network movements Their analysis includes a very rich pool of empirical examples covering more than fifty countries and thirty resistance groups Power Resistance and Conflict in the Contemporary World will be of interest to students and scholars looking for a comprehensive new theorization of the forces at work in global politics The book provides a framework which crosses the boundaries between international relations international political economy comparative politics conflict studies social movement studies and critical theory producing a study of a highly interdisciplinary scope The Poverty of Life-Affirming Work Mechthild Hart, 2001-12-30 While society may applaud middle and upper class women who decide to stay home to raise their children there exists a decided abhorrence for single mothers welfare queens who collect public funds but do not work Here Hart challenges traditional notions of welfare mothers by providing first hand accounts of poor urban mothers and revealing the life affirming and moral aspects of their motherwork a form of subsistence work involving many tasks that incorporate the physical psychological emotional and spiritual dimensions of life Though the mothering work these women do is vilified in public discourse as unnecessary and unwanted the author contends that the ethical and epistemological dimensions of life affirming work a key component of motherwork not only structure social political activism but also educational efforts that are oriented towards radical change Concrete experiences of motherwork policy analyses regarding welfare reform efforts oriented towards educational and epistemological border crossings and collective struggles for social change are examined here in a larger theoretical political economic framework Pulling together the many strands of different theoretical fields addressing issues related to critical transformative pedagogy community activism and forms of unpaid work this unique work calls for the unlearning of ways of thinking and feeling which uphold prejudices and life threatening social political hierarchies While the public may sneer at women who choose to accept welfare in order to stay home to raise their children these mothers must continue to perform this invisible work in order that their children may break the cycle of poverty in which they are entrenched The author examines ways in which these mothers organize and carry out educational efforts and political work in the context of extreme poverty and against the harsh criticisms of an unforgiving public Ultimately Hart hopes to convince the public of the inherent importance of motherwork and break down the prejudices that have worked against the urban poor and single mothers Elgar Encyclopedia of Development Matthew Clarke,Xinyu (Andy) Zhao,2023-10-06 The Elgar Encyclopedia of Development is a ground breaking resource that provides a starting point for those wishing to grasp how and why development occurs while also providing further expansion appropriate for more experienced academics Just Transitions Seema Arora-Jonsson,Kavya Michael,Manish Kumar Shrivastava,2023-10-04 This book turns critical feminist scrutiny on national climate policies in India and examines what transition might really mean for marginalized groups in the country A vision of just transitions is increasingly being used by activists and groups to ensure that pathways towards sustainable futures are equitable and inclusive Exploring this concept this volume provides a feminist study of what it would take to ensure just transitions in India where gender in relation to its interesting dimensions of power is at the centre of analysis With case studies on climate mitigation and adaptation from different parts of India the book brings together academics practitioners and policymakers who provide commentary on sectors including agriculture forestry and renewables Overall the book has relevance far beyond India s borders as India s attempt to deal with its diverse population makes it a key litmus test for countries seeking to transition against a backdrop of inequality both in the Global North and South This volume will be of great interest to students and scholars of climate policy gender studies sustainable development and development studies more broadly Transformations Torry D. Dickinson,Robert K. Schaeffer,2015-12-03 Bringing feminist and world systems theories together this analytic anthology examines the rise of intersecting women centered movements that contribute to alternative development and the rise of new societies The authors consider feminist movements and humanistic transformations that create new work and market relations promote democracy and equality redefine gender and sexuality regenerate the environment and construct nonviolent and peaceful relations At the end of each chapter articles by feminist theorists and practitioners on these topics are included to illustrate the analysis Using a global historical framework the book shows how diverse multicultural and international feminist ideas can be brought together to provide a comprehensive and differentiated understanding of change

Feminism Seduced Hester Eisenstein, 2015-12-03 In a pioneering reinterpretation of the role of mainstream feminism Eisenstein shows how the ruling elites of developed countries utilize women's labor and the ideas of women's liberation and empowerment to maintain their economic and political power both at home and abroad Her explorations range from the abolition of welfare as we know it and the ending of the family wage in the United States to the creation of export processing zones in the global South that depend on women's nimble fingers and from the championing of microcredit as a path to women's empowerment in the global South to the claim of women's presumed liberation in the West as an ideological weapon in the war on terrorism Eisenstein challenges activists and intellectuals to recognize that international feminism is at a fateful crossroads and argues that it is crucial for feminists to throw in their lot with the progressive forces that are seeking alternatives to globalized corporate capitalism
