across animal species Human language is often thought of as a unique system which separates humans from other animals This textbook serves as a guide to different types of communication and suggests that each is unique in its own way human verbal and nonverbal communication communication in nonhuman primates in dogs and in birds Research questions and findings from different perspectives are summarized and integrated to show students similarities and differences in the rich diversity of communicative behaviours A core topic is how young individuals proceed from not being able to communicate to reaching a state of competent communicators and the role of adults in this developmental process Evolutionary aspects are also taken into consideration and ideas about the evolution of human language are examined The cross disciplinary nature of the book makes it useful for courses in linguistics biology sociology and psychology but it is also valuable reading for anyone interested in understanding communicative behaviour

The Quest for Symbolic Communication in Non-Human Animals
Ulrike Griebel,D. Kimbrough Oller ,Irene M. Pepperberg,2024-06-13 Human language is unique among animals We assume that complex cognitive capacities in general and language in particular evolved gradually and thus are manifest in different kinds and or degrees in other animals demonstrating social communication This assumption is supported by the fact that we can train social species from very different groups of animals e g great apes dolphins dogs parrots to understand and in several cases even use abstract symbols for communication with humans and conspecifics Even simple grammatical rules for sequences of 2 3 symbols can be trained to be understood by several species e g great apes dogs dolphins Even though human language training in these species takes considerable time and effort it convinces us that cognitive foundations for language are present in other species and given the relevant selection pressures symbolic communication could evolve in other species

Implementing a Comprehensive Research Compliance Program Aurali Dade,Lori Olafson,Suzan M. DiBella,2015-07-01 The senior research compliance administrator has emerged as a critically important position as universities and other research organizations face an increasingly intricate regulatory environment These administrators are tasked with a special challenge ensuring that their institutions conduct safe ethical and compliant research while also helping researchers understand and meet compliance requirements and achieve their research goals These competing responsibilities can make the role of the research administrator complex however those who serve in this role may find that they have limited preparation for the challenges and little or no formal education in the field Thus the goal of this handbook is to provide practical guidance to research administrators who are responsible for a wide variety of compliance programs

Previous volumes on these topics have focused primarily on educating research faculty staff and students. An assumption in many of these handbooks is that all additional questions related to research ethics and regulations should be directed to the senior research administrator yet the books have limited guidance intended for the senior research administrators themselves. This handbook is designed therefore to serve as a detailed program implementation manual for these administrators who are expected to be conversant on a broad range of complex ethical and regulatory topics and to provide guidance to those conducting research as well as upper administration and others interested in safe ethical and compliant research.

Imitating Authors Colin Burrow, 2019-05-16 Imitating Authors is a major study of the theory and practice of imitatio the imitation of one author by another from antiquity to the present day. It extends from early Greek texts right up to recent fictions about clones and artificial humans and illuminates both the theory and practice of imitation. At its centre lie the imitating authors of the English Renaissance including Ben Jonson and the most imitated imitator of them all John Milton. Imitating Authors argues that imitation was not simply a matter of borrowing words or of alluding to an earlier author. Imitators learnt practices from earlier writers. They imitated the structures and forms of earlier writing in ways that enabled them to create a new style which itself could be imitated. That made imitation an engine of literary change. Imitating Authors also shows how the metaphors used by theorists to explain this complex practice fed into works which were themselves imitations and how those metaphors have come to influence present day anxieties about imitation human beings and artificial forms of intelligence. It explores relationships between imitation and authorial style its fraught connections with plagiarism and how emerging ideas of genius and intellectual property changed how imitation was practised. In refreshing and jargon free prose Burrow explains not just what imitation was in the past but how it influences the present and what it could be in the future. Imitating Authors includes detailed discussion of Plato Roman rhetorical theory Virgil Lucretius Petrarch Cervantes Ben Jonson Milton Pope Wordsworth Mary Shelley and Kazuo Ishiguro.

Communicating Ruth Finnegan, 2023-10-30 Treatments of human communication mostly draw on cognitive and word centred models to present it as predominantly a matter of words This Finnegan argues seriously underestimates the far reaching multi modal qualities of human interconnecting and the senses of touch olfaction and above all audition and vision that we draw on In an authoritative and readable account Ruth Finnegan brings together research from linguistic and sensory anthropology material culture non verbal communication computer mediated communication and strikingly research on animal communication such as the remarkable gesture systems of great apes She draws on her background in classical studies and her long anthropological experience to present illuminating examples from throughout the world past and present The result is to uncover an amazing array of sounds sights smells gestures looks movements touches and material objects used by humans and other animals to interconnect both nearby and across space and time She goes on to first explore the extra sensory modes of communication now being revealed in the extraordinary new science research and then in an incendiary conclusion to deny the long prevailing story of human history by questioning whether orality really came before literacy whether it was really through the acquisition of language that our prehistoric cave painting ancestors made a sudden leap into being true humans and finally astonishingly to ask whether human communicating had its first roots not after all in verbal language but something else Not to be missed this highly original book brings a fresh perspective on among other things that central topic of interest today the dawn of human history and on what being homo sapiens really means This revised and updated edition has additional illustrations updated chapters and a new concluding chapter A provocative and controversial account that will stir worldwide debate this book is an essential transdisciplinary overview for researchers and advanced students in language and communication anthropology and cultural studies
