sown long before the Reagan Revolution and not necessarily by the Right The War on Welfare Family Poverty and Politics in Modern America traces what Bill Clinton famously called the end of welfare as we know it to the grassroots of the War on Poverty thirty years earlier Marshaling a broad variety of sources historian Marisa Chappell provides a fresh look at the national debate about poverty welfare and economic rights from the 1960s through the mid 1990s In Chappell s telling we experience the debate over welfare from multiple perspectives including those of conservatives of several types liberal antipoverty experts national liberal organizations labor government officials feminists of various persuasions and poor women themselves During the Johnson and Nixon administrations deindustrialization stagnating wages and widening economic inequality pushed growing numbers of wives and mothers into the workforce Yet labor unions antipoverty activists and moderate liberal groups fought to extend the fading promise of the family wage to poor African Americans families through massive federal investment in full employment and income support for male breadwinners In doing so however these organizations condemned programs like Aid to Families with Dependent Children AFDC for supposedly discouraging marriage and breaking up families Ironically their arguments paved the way for increasingly successful right wing attacks on both welfare and the War on Poverty itself

Women, Stress, and Heart Disease Kristina Orth-Gomer, Margaret A. Chesney, Nanette K. Wenger, 1998-03-01 The issue of women s health has long been neglected This applies to many medical areas but it has become most evident in the field of cardiology For a long time cardiology has been a medical specialty which seemed to be created for men by men particularly in research but also in intensive clinical care units where male patients have been most visible and dominating Furthermore the clinical cardiologists their doctors have been predominantly male It is easy to understand that most women think they will die from cancer rather than from heart disease but this is not true Heart disease is the leading cause of death for women as it is for men Female patients are frequently encountered in the cardiology department but they are older and seem to get less visibility and attention than the male patients Research on risk factors for heart disease has also been almost entirely focused on men This is true for psychosocial behavioral aspects of cardiovascular risk Aiming to fill this gap this volume contains contributions from outstanding international and national researchers from different fields such as sociology psychology epidemiology cardiology clinical medicine and physiology These professionals gathered together for an interdisciplinary seminar on women stress and heart disease held at the Swedish Society of Medicine Based on the seminar this book provides a solid foundation for empirically based scientific conclusions on this important subject
