Howlett, Ishani Mukherjee, 2018-07-17 Uniting theoretical bases and advancements in practice the Routledge Handbook of Policy Design brings together leading experts in the academic field of policy design in a pioneering effort of scholarship Each chapter provides a multi topic overview of the state of knowledge on how why where or when policies are designed and how such designs can be improved These experts address how a new emphasis on effective policy design has re emerged in public policy studies in recent years and clarify the role of historical policy decisions policy capacities and government intentions in promoting a design orientation towards policy formulation and policy making more generally They examine many previously unexplored aspects of policy designs and designing activities which focus upon analyzing and improving the sets of policy tools adopted by governments to correct policy problems Ranging from the fundamentals of policy design and its place in greater policy studies to new questions regarding policy design content and effectiveness to contemporary design trends such as the use of digital tools and big data the Routledge Handbook of Policy Design is a comprehensive reference for students and scholars of public policy public administration and public management government and business

Implementing High School JROTC Career Academies Lawrence M. Hanser, Abby Eisenshtat Robyn, 2000 In 1992 the U S Departments of Defence and Education joined together to create a high school program aimed at encouraging at risk youth to remain in school until graduation The program is a marriage of the defense sponsored Junior Reserve Officer's Training Corps JROTC program and a comprehensive high school reform initiative referred to as career academeis This report grew out of the sponsors interest in tracking the implementation of the program both as a means to improve it and to expand it to additional sites Using Program Theory in Evaluation Leonard Bickman, 1987 Affirmative Talk, Affirmative Action Augustus J. Jones, 1991-08-30 Affirmative action programs have been implemented in over 50 jurisdictions in the United States yet studies of a number of these communities have shown that most efforts to meet proposed race conscious hiring goals have been unsuccessful This unique comparative case study investigates the reasons for the success or failure of affirmative action programs in two Southern communities Augustus J Jones Jr challenges the findings in the literature that affirmative action efforts are doomed to failure This analysis does what similar studies have failed to do it identifies and defines those elements communications resources commitment political social conditions and bureaucratic arrangements required for the successful execution of any public policy program and then offers appropriate strategies in a detailed step by step approach for successfully executing affirmative action goals Research for the volume includes over 50 interviews of city state and federal officials responsible for implementing affirmative action goals on the spot observations of the communities affirmative action shops and written records of city and country commission meetings Following an introductory chapter that outlines the purpose justifications and methodology of the work the second chapter compares variables within the two communities such as their civil rights records political orientation and progress in meeting affirmative action goals Five subsequent chapters focus on the key elements in race conscious hiring programs including communications resources commitment political conditions and organizational arrangements The final chapter offers conclusions a recipe for successful affirmative action programs and speculations about the future of these programs This useful assessment will become a standard affirmative action how to book for scholars students policy analysts bureaucrats both inside and outside government and equal opportunity officers at the federal state and local levels who are responsible for implementing and enforcing equal opportunity laws and affirmative action goals     Southeast Asian Journal of Social Science ,1986     Public Policy Studies Stuart S.
