Abstract

This article deals with the reception of Rosa Luxemburg's The Accumulation of Capital: A Contribution to the Economic Explanation of Imperialism in the Second International before the start of the First World War. Our analysis shows that, if the condemnation of The Accumulation of Capital by the political right and centre was almost unanimous, its acceptance by the left was far from universal. In fact, both Lenin and Pannekoek rejected Luxemburg's theory, adopting instead the economic analysis of an important spokesman of the centre, the Austro-Marxist Rudolf Hilferding. Our work concludes by analysing the reasons for those theoretical differences.

The Second International and the theory of imperialism

According to the historians Richard Koebner and Helmut Dan Schmidt, the word impérialisme began to be used in the second half of the 19th century as a neologism along with the word bonapartisme, to indicate the diverse forms in which the Second French Empire of Louis Napoleon (1852–70) maintained its rule over France (Koebner and Schmidt 1965: 1). Marx also used the term Imperialismus to denote the political regime of France in his book, The Eighteenth Brumaire of Louis Bonaparte (Marx 1852). Thus,

The Palgrave Handbook of Global Approaches to Peace Aigul Kulnazarova,Vesselin Popovski,2018-12-19 With existing literature focusing largely on Western perspectives of peace and their applications a global understanding of peace is much needed Spurred by more recent debates and discourses that criticize the dominant realist and liberal approaches for crises in contemporary state and peace building the contributors to this handbook emphasize not only the need to solve this eternal conundrum of humanity but also demand with the rise of increasingly more violent conflicts in international relations the development of a global interpretive framework for peace and security To this end the present handbook examines conceptual institutional and normative interpretive approaches for

Carroll,2011-11-01 Challenging standard dependency theory William Carroll argues from empirical evidence that Canada s financial industrial elite have maintained and consolidated their competitive position at the centre of an inter corporate network Corporate Power and Canadian Capitalism thus acknowledges the unusually high degree to which capital is concentrated in a relatively few giant corporations in Canada but it denies that these commercial interests are subordinated to American corporate capital To test the validity of this new perspective on the transformation of indigenous capitalists into a national bourgeoisie Carroll traces the accumulation of capital in the largest Canadian corporations and the institutional relations that have existed among the same firms since World War II Instead of selling out to foreign capital Canadian firms have in fact become increasingly interlocked and Canadian controlled firms have been and continue to be the focus of both the industrial and financial sectors with foreign controlled companies occupying decidedly peripheral positions From this interpretative position Canada s development is seen as markedly similar to that of other advanced capitalist countries culminating in consolidation of control under an elite accompanied both by penetration of foreign economies by domestic financial capitalists and a concomitant penetration of the domestic economy by foreign capital Social Analysis ,1981
