South Korea, a Country Study Frederica M. Bunge,1982 Two Koreas in Development Byoung-Lo Philo Kim, The startling revolutions of recent years have had as great an impact on Northeast Asia as on Eastern Europe Gorbachev s cautious withdrawal of support for North Korea and his establishment of ties with South Korea have created a need for a new research agenda exploring how communism and capitalism in Asia can be successfully restructured or redirected in a new world order Focused on systemic issues this book is the first study to attempt a comprehensive analysis of social and economic development in modern Korea as a whole As a homogeneous nation artificially divided by the competing ideologies of the Cold War Korea provides a unique laboratory for comparing divergent development processes undertaken by conflicting social systems Current theories of Third World development have advocated either capitalist models of modernization or have called for the establishment of self reliant socialist economies cut off from the world capitalist system While capitalist South Korea has consistently outperformed Communist North Korea since the mid 1970s development has not yet brought a fully evolved Western style democracy in its wake Self reliant North Korea achieved successful growth during its first fifteen years but has since been faced with numerous structural limitations on sustained development including severe restrictions on political freedom and civil liberties In the author s view the experience of the two Koreas suggests that the solution to underdevelopment must be based on the realization that exclusionary theories need modification in the light of special historical and sociological circumstances peculiar to individual nations This volume offers a valuable interpretation of modern Korean history and constitutes an important contribution to the comparative study of capitalism and communism in practice It will be of particular interest to specialists in international relations and comparative political systems

The Scythian Connection and the Shamanistic Crowns of Ancient Korea Shirley Fish,2021-08-22 The Three Kingdoms Period in Korean history consisted of the kingdoms of Silla Koguryo and Paekche It was only the Silla kingdom which seemed to have had a connection to the ancient nomadic Scythians These people seemed so different from the indigenous inhabitants who were already living in Korea during the 3th to 6th centuries CE It is the author s opinion is that they were the descendants of the Scythians who although they would not have called themselves Scythians they were none the less the remnant members of nomadic tribes that pushed eastward from Central Asia and Siberia to the Korean peninsula Once in Southern Korea they established the Silla kingdom where their time honored beliefs are depicted in their mound burials wooden burial chambers gold crowns horse riding and also in their Siberian shamanism This time period of the gold crowns and the people who produced the royal headgear was the Maripgan Period and as mentioned they were the descendants of Scythians who although in Central Asia and Siberia were known to have existed as far back as 10 000 years BC they were always on the move searching for new pasturelands for their herds or to avoid conflicts and war with their enemies The Silla crowns were created around the 5th to the 7th centuries in Kyongju the former capital of the Silla people When they were discovered in various archaeological mound sites they were found to be in a highly fragile state The crowns were each designated as national treasures by the Korean government and most weigh about one kilogram Some of the crowns came in two parts an inner gold cap which may have been covered in silk fabric and sat inside of the crown and the crown itself The crowns were totally shamanistic in their symbolism and represented the belief systems of the Scythians of Central Asia and Siberia which eventually made its way to Korea and the ancient Kingdom of Silla
