

BASIC HUMAN NEEDS

A Special Guide Notes for Nursing

A. Abraham Maslow

Has developed the five (5) levels of human needs:

I. Physiologic Needs

Needs such as air, food, water, shelter, rest, sleep, activity and temperature maintenance are crucial for survival.

II. Safety and Security Needs

The need for safety has both physical and physiologic aspects.

III. Love and Belonging Needs

The third level of needs includes giving and receiving affection, attaining a place in a group and maintaining the feeling of belonging.

IV. Self-Esteem Needs

The individual needs both self-esteem and esteem from others.

V. Self-Actualization

When the need for self-esteem is satisfied, the individual strives for self-actualization, the innate need to develop one's maximum potential and realize one's abilities and qualities.

B. Maslow's Characteristics of a Self-Actualized Person

- I. Is realistic, sees life clearly and is objective about his or her observations
