Interaction and the Standardized Survey Interview Hanneke Houtkoop-Steenstra, 2000-08-03 This study investigates in detail the interaction between interviewers and respondents in standardised social survey interviews Applying the techniques of conversation analysis Hanneke Houtkoop Steenstra reveals how certain rules of normal conversation fail to apply in interviews based on a standard questionnaire and offers original empirical evidence to show what really happens Her book demonstrates that interview results can only be understood as products of the contingencies of the interview situation and not as is usually assumed the unmediated expressions of respondents real opinions Her conclusions have important implications for anyone interested in effective survey compilation and interpretation The book is highly accessible setting out the basic tools of conversation analysis simply and clearly and suggesting ways of improving questionnaire design wherever possible Its approach will be of great interest to students and researchers of survey methodology

Rethinking Basic Writing Laura Gray-Rosendale, 1999-12 This book surveys the history of basic writing scholarship suggesting that we cannot adequately theorize the situations of basic writers unless we examine how they construct their own conceptions of their identities their constructions of their relationships to social forces and their representations of their relationships to written work Using a cross disciplinary analytic model Gray Rosendale offers a detailed examination of the oral conversations that take place within one basic writing peer revision group She explains the ways in which the students own conversational structures impact and shape their written products Gray Rosendale then draws out the potentials of her work for basic writing administrators curricula builders and teachers

The Construction of Professional Discourse B.L. Gunnarsson, Per Linell, Bengt Nordberg, 2014-09-19 Internationally there is increasing research and interest in the processes of the production and reception of texts for specific purposes and in the historical development of genres and registers within Languages for Specific Purposes LSP psycholinguistics sociolinguistics anthropology and the sociology of science Studies of professional communication have traditionally been biased towards the written medium and have been carried out with little if any connection to LSP Disciplinary boundaries and interest groupings have thus kept these different approaches to the study of professional communication and interaction separate The editors of this volume unite these different perspectives and approaches and bring together recent research from linguistics sociolinguistics ethnography of communication anthropology and sociology to provide an up to date analysis of different varieties of professional discourse and their historical development Chapters written by leading exponents in the field deal with the core theoretical issue of how language written genres and spoken discourse are constructed as a successive and continuous interplay between language and social realities The volume includes chapters on the moral construction of discourse in the social care profession the discourse of dispute negotiation narrative accounts in clinical research doctor patient interaction legal and other kinds of institutional discourse A key text for students of applied linguistics and sociolinguistics at both advanced undergraduate and MA levels

Verbal Communication Andrea Rocci, Louis de Saussure, 2016-03-07 Common sense tells us that verbal communication should be a central concern both for the study of communication and for the study of language Language is the most pervasive means of communication in human societies especially if we consider the huge gamut of communication phenomena where spoken and written language combines with other modalities such as gestures or pictures Most communication researchers have to deal with issues of language use in their work Classic methods in communication research from content analysis to interviews and questionnaires not to mention the obvious cases of rhetorical analysis and discourse analysis presuppose the understanding of the meaning of spontaneous or elicited verbal productions Despite its pervasiveness verbal communication does not currently define one cohesive and distinct subfield within the communication discipline The Handbook of Verbal Communication seeks to address this gap In doing so it draws not only on the communication discipline but also on the rich interdisciplinary research on language and communication that developed over the last fifty years as linguistics interacted with the social sciences and the cognitive sciences The interaction of linguistic research with the social sciences has produced a plethora of approaches to the study of meanings in social context from conversation analysis to critical discourse analysis while cognitive research on verbal communication carried out in cognitive pragmatics as well as in cognitive linguistics has offered insights into the interaction between language inference and persuasion and into cognitive processes such as framing or metaphorical mapping The Handbook of Verbal Communication volume takes into account these two traditions selecting those issues and themes that are most relevant for communication scholars It addresses background matters such as the evolution of human verbal communication and the relationship between verbal and non verbal means of communication and offers a an extensive discussion of the explicit and implicit meanings of verbal messages with a focus on emotive and figurative meanings Conversation and fundamental types of discourse such as argument and narrative are presented in depth as is the key notion of discourse genre The nature of writing systems as well as the interaction of spoken or written language with non verbal modalities are devoted ample attention Different contexts of language use are considered from the mass media and the new media to the organizational contexts Cultural and linguistic diversity is addressed with a focus on phenomena such as multilingual communication and translation A key feature of the volume is the coverage of verbal communication quality Quality is examined both from a cognitive and from a social perspective It covers topics that range from to the cognitive processes underlying deceptive communication to the methods that can be used to assess the quality of texts in an organizational context Storytelling in Multilingual Interaction Jean Wong,Hansun Zhang Waring,2021-03-01 Integral to the tapestry of social interaction storytelling is the focus of interest for scholars from a diverse range of academic disciplines This volume combines the study of conversation analysis CA with storytelling in multilingual contexts to examine how multilingual speakers converse and manage various aspects of storytelling and how they accomplish a wide range of actions through storytelling in classroom and everyday settings An original book length endeavor devoted exclusively to storytelling in multilingual contexts this book contributes to broadening the scope of the foundational conversation analytic literature on storytelling and to further specifying the nature of second language L2 interactional competence Designed for pre service and in service second or foreign language teachers students of applied linguistics as well as scholars interested in storytelling this volume explores the cross linguistic nature of generic interactional practices sheds light on the nature of translanguaging and learner language and provides insights into teacher practices on managing classroom storytelling Social Actions for Classroom Language Learning John Hellermann,2008-01-11 Drawing on recent socio cultural approaches to research on language learning and an extensive corpus of classroom video recording made over four years the book documents language learning as an epiphenomenon of peer face to face interaction Advanced technology for recording classroom interaction 6 cameras per classroom allows the research to move the focus for analysis off the teacher and onto learners as they engage in dyadic interaction The research uses methods from conversation analysis with longitudinal data to document practices for interaction between learners and how those practices change over time Language learning is seen in learners change in participation in their in social actions that occur around and within teacher assigned language learning tasks starting the task non elicited story tellings within tasks and ending tasks Web links are provided so the reader can see the data from the classroom that is the subject of the analyses Talking to Adults Shoshana Blum-Kulka,Catherine E. Snow,2002-04 The focus of this volume is on how language is used between adults and children The results is a volume that will appeal to readers in language development and narrative discourse Has the potential to become a classic graduate level text reference

Schooling the Child Helena Austin, Bronwyn Dwyer, Peter Freebody, 2005-08-19 What is a child How is the concept of childhood defined This book aims to explore these perennial and complex questions by looking at the way in which society constructs and understands childhood The authors focus in particular on the school a key location within which social and cultural notions of childhood are defined and performed The book is divided into three major parts Part 1 frames the accepted notions of childhood and schooling and introduces ethnomethodological analysis as a tool to rethink current versions of the child Part 2 focuses on how school students become members of a category within the institution of the classroom The authors explore this idea through transcripts of talk between teachers and students and amongst students themselves in two classroom studies Part 3 looks at the materials of education concentrating specifically on children's texts The authors examine how such texts portray a notion of the child within the story and also assume a notion of the child as reader of the story This important book shows how much is at stake for children in accepting adults' deep seated notions of childhood It will be of great interest to educational researchers and policy makers sociologists of childhood teachers and student teachers
