This handbook provides an up to date survey of the field of corpus linguistics a field whose methodology has revolutionized much of the empirical work done in most fields of linguistic study over the past decade Corpus linguistics investigates human language by starting out from large collections of texts spoken written or recorded These language corpora which are now regularly available in electronic form are the basis for quantitative and qualitative research on almost any question of linguistic interest Many techniques that are in use in corpus linguistics today are rooted in the tradition of the late 18th and 19th century when linguistics began to make use of mathematical and empirical methods Modern corpus linguistics has used and developed these methods in close connection with computer science and computational linguistics The handbook sketches the history of corpus linguistics shows its potential discusses its problems and describes various methods of collecting annotating and searching corpora as well as processing corpus data It also reports case studies that illustrate the wide range of linguistic research questions addressed in corpus linguistics The over 60 articles included in the handbook are divided into five sections 1 the origins and history of corpus linguistics and surveys of its relationship to central fields of linguistics 2 corpus compilation 3 corpus types 4 preprocessing of corpora 5 the use and exploitation of corpora The final section gives an overview of the results of corpus studies obtained in phonetics phonology morphology syntax semantics sociolinguistics historical linguistics stylometry dialectology and discourse analysis It also reports on recent advances made in human and machine translation contrastive studies computer assisted language learning and automatic summarization The contributors to the volume are internationally known experts in their respective fields The handbook is intended for a wide audience ranging from teachers university students and scholars to anyone interested in the use of computers in linguistic analyses and applications
