The Lessons and Non-Lessons of the Air and Missile Campaign in Kosovo Anthony H. Cordesman, 2001-08-30 The conclusion of a war typically signals the beginning of a flood of memoirs and instant campaign histories many presenting the purported but often dubious lessons of the recent conflict Cordesman is careful to avoid such pitfalls in this detailed and closely reasoned analysis and helps us to begin to understand the implications of this dramatic conflict on its own terms Based on a combination of official and unofficial but always authoritative sources he builds a thorough case for the true lessons of NATO s first battle fought within Europe After consideration of the historical major political and strategic factors that set the stage for the Kosovo campaign Cordesman critically examines the actual effectiveness of the NATO air campaigns both in Kosovo and Serbia proper Operations in this rugged part of Europe were difficult and compounding the challenges of terrain and weather were the conflicting national agendas within the Allied coalition that seriously hampered focused and decisive action by NATO Although Milosevic ultimately conceded defeat all of these factors played an important role in limiting the intensity and shaping the military outcome of the campaign and the likely political and strategic results were far from certain Cordesman unflinchingly concludes that the air campaign over Kosovo exposed deep fault lines within and among the NATO countries and fundamental flaws in the way the West wages war Air Force Magazine ,2000-07 The Future of the American Military Presence in Europe ,2000 The Future of the American Military Presence in Europe Lloyd J. Matthews,2000 Ten years have elapsed since the fall of the Berlin Wall which served as a fitting symbol for the end of the Cold War That historic juncture brought into question the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which has served Alliance members so well since its founding in 1949 It also brought into question the rationale for America s continued deep involvement in European security affairs With the gradual realization that the Russian menace is essentially dead at least for the next 10 to 15 years and perhaps longer and with NATO s missions having evolved well beyond the original purpose of territorial defense debate on both sides of the Atlantic has begun to intensify concerning the vital issue of where NATO should be headed and America s relation to the Alliance To bring an array of informed voices to the debate four institutions the Office of the Assistant Vice Chief of Staff of the U S Army the Strategic Studies Institute of the U S Army War College the Irving B Harris Graduate School of Public Policy Studies of the University of Chicago and the Program on International Security Policy at the University of Chicago joined hands to sponsor a symposium titled The Future of U S Military Presence in Europe held at the University of Chicago on August 4 1999 The present book is an outgrowth of this symposium It is not designed to set forth a literal record of words and events in the mold of the traditional symposium proceedings but rather is organized as an anthology of individual chapters complemented by selected questions answers and comments by symposium participants and attendees Delivering Victory Richard E. Killblane,2019-11-29 In this book US Army Transportation Corps Historian Richard E Killblane utilizes the expertise of professionals with lived experience of synchronizing military transportation from end to end to uniquely explore how military transportation logistics have evolved during the last half of the 20th Century and beyond towards greater efficiency The Stryker Brigade Combat Team Alan J. Vick,David T. Orletsky,Bruce R. Pirnie,Seth G. Jones,2002-12-24 Examines alternative means to decrease the deployment time for the new Army medium weight brigade comparing air and sealift from the United States with air and fast but short range sealift from forward bases or preposition sites Historical experience and an assessment of U S regional interests are used to determine how much warning time the United States typically has before major force deployments and where it is most likely to deploy such forces
