Italian Cooking for the American Housewife Paul Wichert,2014-09-12 This cookbook is a set of lessons from our Italian host school that the chef put together especially for the newcomers from America Recipes from the Mediterranean region were presented as lessons in Italian and an Italian English translator previewed the recipes with us so we always knew what the dish is called the ingredients and how to make it Fortunately a menu plan was given to us each day so we could read the recipes in Italian and make notes on the paper At the end of our stay in Otranto we were assigned a large menu meant to feed a party of twenty With everyone gathered round the invited guests school staff and administrators we served a six course meal one course at a time Afterwards the formalities included photo opportunities as each student was presented with a certificate of completion and the course packet of about fifty recipes including a letter from the school principal His letter is the missing perspective on why a group of American culinary students are in this city and at his school Total immersion into the local community meant accepting the Italian language in all its forms spoken written and historical While translating for this book I developed a written accent and it remains as a colorful imprint Because I wanted to bring Italy home with me and this is a way to share the charm Reading certain passages aloud will highlight the rhythm and character

Edible Identities: Food as Cultural Heritage Ronda L. Brulotte, Michael A. Di Giovine, 2016-04-29 Food its cultivation preparation and communal consumption has long been considered a form of cultural heritage A dynamic living product food creates social bonds as it simultaneously marks off and maintains cultural difference In bringing together anthropologists historians and other scholars of food and heritage this volume closely examines the ways in which the cultivation preparation and consumption of food is used to create identity claims of cultural heritage on local regional national and international scales Contributors explore a range of themes including how food is used to mark insiders and outsiders within an ethnic group how the same food s meanings change within a particular society based on class gender or taste and how traditions are invented for the revitalization of a community during periods of cultural pressure Featuring case studies from Europe Asia and the Americas this timely volume also addresses the complex processes of classifying designating and valorizing food as terroir slow food or as intangible cultural heritage through UNESCO By effectively analyzing food and foodways through the perspectives of critical heritage studies this collection productively brings two overlapping but frequently separate theoretical frameworks into conversation
