The Sea Painter's World Geoff Hunt, 2012-06-11 This timely follow up to Conway s highly successful Marine Art of Geoff Hunt 2004 presents the considerable artistic output of

Britain's leading marine painter since 2003 This new volume is heavily illustrated with images ranging from large paintings to sketchbook drawings with text written by the artist himself The new book reflects Hunt's developing career during a time in which he served a five year term as President of the Royal Society of Marine Artists worked on large scale paintings such as the definitive Mary Rose and also completed numerous outdoor sketches and paintings The book is divided into six sections 1 The Sea Painter's World an introduction to the artist's studio work at Merton Place London and his plein air work on the River Thames 2 Home Waters 3 The Mediterranean 4 In the Wake of Nelson 5 North America and 6 The West Indies and Beyond This concept sets Geoff's work in a broadly geographical context showcasing the artist's freer plein air style alongside the exhaustively researched maritime history paintings to which he owes his standing as Britain's leading marine artist

Ship Decoration, 1630-1780 Andrew Peters, 2013-10-23 This book is a detailed comparative study of the decorative work figurehead topside ornamentation and stern gallery design carried by the ships of the major maritime states of Europe in the zenith of the sailing era It covers both warships and the most prestigious merchant ships the East Indiamen of the great chartered companies The work began life in the year 2000 when the author was commissioned to carry out research for an ambitious project to build a full size replica of a Swedish East Indiaman which produced a corpus of information whose relevance stretched way beyond the immediate requirements of accurately decorating the replica In tracking the artistic influences on European ship decoration it became clear that this was essentially the story of the baroque style its dissemination from France and its gradual transformation into distinct national variations in Britain the Netherlands Denmark and Sweden It is an inherently visual subject and the book illustrates developments with numerous photographs of contemporary ship models paintings and plans as well as the author's own interpretive illustrations of details As the first major work on the topic for nearly a century it will be of obvious appeal to ship modellers and historians but with comparative examples drawn from architecture and sculpture it also makes a broader contribution to the history of the applied arts

Famine Niamh Ann Kelly,2018-06-12 The depiction of historical humanitarian disasters in art exhibitions news reports monuments and heritage landscapes has framed the harrowing images we currently associate with dispossession People across the world are driven out of their homes and countries on a wave of conflict poverty and famine and our main sites for engaging with their loss are visual news and social media In a reappraisal of the viewer s role in representations of displacement Niamh Ann Kelly examines a wide range of commemorative visual culture from the mid nineteenth century Great Irish Famine Her analysis of memorial images objects and locations from that period until the early 21st century shows how artefacts of historical trauma can affect understandings of enforced migrations as an ongoing form of political violence This book will be of interest to students and researchers of museum and heritage studies material culture Irish history and contemporary visual cultures exploring dispossession Museums and Public Art? Cher Krause Knight,Harriet F. Senie,2018-06-11 While many museums have ignored public art as a distinct arena of art production and display others have either grudgingly or enthusiastically embraced it Some institutions have partnered with public art agencies to expand the scope of special exhibitions other museums have attempted to establish in house public art programs This is the first book to contextualize the collaborations between museums and public art through a range of essays marked by their coherence of topical focus written by leading and emerging scholars and artists Organized into three sections it represents a major contribution to the field of art history in general and to those of public art and museum studies in particular It includes essays by art historians critics curators arts administrators and artists all of whom help to finally codify the largely unwritten history of how museums and public art have and continue to intersect Key questions are both addressed and offered as topics for further discussion Who originates such public art initiatives funds them and most importantly establishes the philosophy behind them Is the efficacy of these initiatives evaluated in the same way as other museum exhibitions and programs Can public art ever be a permanent feature in any museum And finally are the museum and public art ultimately at odds or able to mutually benefit one another

Escape of a Block Island Artist Ted Merritt, 2014-06-11 This small book has three strands First it is about escaping from the workaday world Second it is about using art and to some extent music to escape and it is about Block Island Rhode Island which is a popular tourist escape destination Block Island referred to by some as one of the five most beautiful places in the world is an outdoor paradise well worth a visit With a setting fifteen miles due south from Rhode Island out into the Atlantic Ocean it offers its entire perimeter of beaches and bluffs to the public as well as its interior greenway walking trails Approximately 43 percent of the island land is open space It is therefore no surprise that the island population swells from approximately a thousand in the winter to more than fifteen thousand in the summer The painting on the cover depicts a double ender sailboat of the type that Block Islanders used in the 1920s and 1930s Block Islanders used the double ender to fish and travel back and forth to the mainland The boat is remembered in the Block Island annual Fourth of July double ender parade as a small versatile craft that could sail well in heavy air be hauled out on the beach for safekeeping at night and could carry large loads of fish The hull comes to a point at the bow and again at the stern to split the waves breaking in the front and back It carried stones from the beach for ballast until they were jettisoned and replaced by a like weight in fish From twenty five to forty feet in length with a crew of two this was the only mode of transportation to and from the island for many years The painting reflects an image in my head and I created it on an eleven by fourteen inch canvas in heavy body acrylic The robust and almost primitive style of the art is offered to represent the weather oriented life and nature of early islanders I often escape from daily life by imagining my hand on the tiller of this boat in a storm It was with that feeling that I used the paintbrush to cut the unique curves in the painting In this book I talk of looking into ones head for escape satisfaction and comfort Most Block Islanders because of the nature of their isolation also have learned in my opinion to look inward for satisfaction and comfort and to escape During the past decade I have come to know Island visitors as a resident as a water taxi driver in New Harbor and as an artist in the Spring Street Art Gallery It appears to me that most people come to the island with visions of escape in their minds Island visitors and residents for the most part have chosen to escape from the mainland or America as Islanders describe it to enjoy a more relaxed life surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean Willy nilly describes life on the island spontaneous and haphazard This story is autobiographical with a philosophical flavor The paintings reproduced in these pages are my interpretation on the escapist theme The paintings argue that for me becoming an artist was a good way to escape Singing was another Singing and painting are two of the ways I have chosen to escape When painting I never use a photo or any other document to guide my artistic production Reaching into my head has turned out to be fun and writing about escapism has also turned out to be fun I conclude that it is fun to escape Perhaps an exploration of what is in your head will result in a new artistic pursuit
