experience and interaction They are arguably the glue that can bind people together or alternatively drive them apart While social scientists have paid increasing attention to the centrality of emotions in social and pedagogical relationships the sport coaching literature has remained largely free of emotions Indeed there remains a paucity of scholarship exploring how emotions such as excitement joy anger anxiety guilt pride and embarrassment may be re produced in as well as through the social interactions and contextual relations that constitute coaching Similarly we know very little about how these and other emotions are embodied in the everyday practice of individuals and groups The aim of this book was to generate new and exploratory insights into the emotions that are an inherent feature of social relations and individual experience in coaching Using a variety of psychological and sociological frameworks the chapters in this book not only explore the interconnections between emotion identity cognition and learning but they also serve as a platform for stimulating further inquiry in this topic area The chapters were originally published in a special issue of Sports Coaching Review
