libraries that share their resources with other institutions To plan their acquisitions carefully and to be of greatest use to other consortia members a library needs to gauge the strength of its holdings accurately This volume describes and illustrates a relatively brief test to assign libraries a score for existing collection strength in a subject area Drawing upon expert human judgment and holdings data available from OCLC the test can assist librarians in setting and verifying collection levels on the RLG or WLN Conspectus scales Collection strength is often verified in a labor intensive fashion The brief test presented by the author is an economical alternative to the more typical labor intensive approach to collection analysis

Statistics in Criminology and Criminal Justice: Analysis and Interpretation Jeffery T. Walker, PhD and Sean Maddan, PhD, Bi-Directionality in the Cognitive Sciences Marcus Callies, Wolfram R. Keller, Astrid Lohöfer, 2011-07-13

Cognitive science is the interdisciplinary study of the human mind As far as the exact relationship between the cognitive sciences and other fields is concerned however it appears that interdisciplinary exchange often remains unrealized possibly because of the uni directional application of theories concepts and methods which impedes the productive transfer of knowledge in both directions In the course of the cognitive turn in the humanities and social sciences many disciplines have selectively borrowed ideas from core cognitive sciences like psychology and artificial intelligence The day to day practice of interdisciplinarity thus thrives on one directional borrowings Focusing on cognitive approaches in linguistics and literary studies this volume explores bi directionality a genuine transdisciplinary interchange in which both disciplines are borrowing and lending The contributions take different perspectives on bi directionality some extend uni directional borrowing practices and point to avenues and crossroads while others critically discuss obstacles challenges and limitations to bi directional transfer

Assessing Affective Characteristics in the Schools Lorin W. Anderson, Sid F. Bourke, 2013-05-13

The affective realm is a critical but often forgotten aspect of schooling The development of character and the formation of appropriate learning environments rely to a large extent on understanding the affective nature of students Even when the focus is on cognitive achievement affect has a role to play Teachers frequently mention a lack of motivation as a primary reason for students not achieving as well as they should or as well as their teachers would like Despite the importance of affect educators rarely make an effort to systematically collect and use information about students affective characteristics to better understand students and to substantially improve the quality of education they receive This book's purpose is to provide educators with the knowledge and skills they need to design and select instruments that can be used to gather information about students affective characteristics Once valid and reliable information has been gathered it can be used to aid in understanding and to improve educational quality The second edition features an updated list of affective characteristics i e attitudes values interests self esteem self efficacy locus of control a dual emphasis on selecting and designing affective assessment instruments an emphasis on multi scale instruments i e a single instrument with multiple affective scales the use of a single small data set to illustrate and foster understanding of key concepts and procedures a dual emphasis on data about individual students and groups of students a dual focus on the instrumental value of affective data and the inherent value of affective data i.e. affect is valuable in and of itself COVID-19 Epidemiological Situation as a Psychosocial Determinant of Trauma and Stress Mateusz Krystian Grajek, Jonathan Adedayo Odukoya, Ewa Misterska, Mateusz Rozmiarek, 2024-01-24 In addition to the infectious context the COVID 19 pandemic has brought many complications to social life Fear anxiety misinformation and loneliness associated with isolation as well as uncertainty about the days ahead have already caused psychological and emotional changes in many people Many social groups such as cancer patients the elderly schoolchildren and people with disabilities were particularly vulnerable to the psychosocial effects of the COVID 19 pandemic In light of current data even the WHO suggests that the psychological context of the pandemic may have caused more psychological damage than World War II Some researchers also infer the existence already of a post pandemic stress syndrome which is currently not an official medical diagnosis but rather a subtype of PTSD that is being diagnosed Also noted in the context of the pandemic is the breakdown of many social ties due to isolation loneliness the development of symptoms of depressive or anxiety disorders and the transformation of social life Thus it seems reasonable to estimate the magnitude of phenomena of psychosocial importance resulting from the impact of the epidemiological situation associated with the COVID 19 pandemic The primary issue to be considered within the framework of the topic is the identification of psychosocial factors affecting the quality of mental and social health of various social groups which are determined by the epidemiological situation associated with COVID 19 In this view the determining variables will be personal feelings of stress fear anxiety depression discouragement alienation and loneliness and in a global sense the reference of these phenomena to the comfort and quality of social life with particular emphasis on interpersonal relationships COVID 19 as mentioned above continues to be an important social issue and although the situation related to it has recently softened and media reports becoming less frequent It is inferred that we will only now see the full impact of the problems associated with the mental health crisis and the breakdown of interpersonal relationships caused by the COVID 19 pandemic Sleep Health and Measures Runtang Meng, Haiyan Ma, Joseph Michael Dzierzewski, Karen Spruyt, Esther Yuet Ying Lau, 2024-09-26
