The New Science of the Enchanted Universe Marshall Sahlins, 2023-12-05 The vast majority of human societies known to us have been organized along immanentist lines In such societies as Marshall Sahlins argues everything we associate with religion gods and spirits of every sort is part of the daily embodied immanent lives of people Plants and animals have souls and the same essential attributes as other persons and supposedly long dead ancestors continue to live among people communicate with them and have sway over the course of events In this enchanted type of society there is no strict separation between economics politics religion philosophy and culture Some 2 500 years ago at the dawn of the so called Axial Age a radical transformation in human societies began when civilizations spread around the globe from their origins in Greece the Near East northern India and China These civilizations effected a cultural revolution creating a new type of society in which the things we typically associate with religion move from immanent infrastructure to transcendent superstructure Only in a transcendentalist society does it make sense to speak of a god or God and of a heaven out there above us or in a separate realm entirely And only in such a society do we have a division of labour separating out an economic sphere from a political sphere and a sphere of culture Transcendentalist worldviews and modes of life are of course pervasive today They are so much a part of who we are that when we attempt to understand the nature and workings of immanentist societies we often misdescribe them in transcendentalist terms This confusion observes Sahlins has long bedeviled the social sciences and consequently has impeded our understanding of many Indigenous religions and worldviews past and present Sahlins drawing on a vast array of recent and older ethnographic and historical research offers this book as both diagnosis of these ills and a call to correction to develop a new science that would be better positioned to grasp the realities of immanentist societies and to take seriously the cultures of others

Knowing Their Place? Identity and Space in Children's Literature Terri Doughty, Dawn Thompson, 2011-12-14 Traditionally in the West children were expected to know their place but what does this comprise in a contemporary globalized world Does it mean to continue to accept subordination to those larger and more powerful Does it mean to espouse unthinkingly a notion of national identity Or is it about gaining an awareness of the ways in which identity is derived from a sense of place Where individuals are situated matters as much if not more than it ever has In children's literature the physical places and psychological spaces inhabited by children and young adults are also key elements in the developing identity formation of characters and through engagement of readers too The contributors to this collection map a broad range of historical and present day workings of this process exploring indigeneity and place tracing the intertwining of place and identity in diasporic literature analyzing the relationship of the child to the natural world and studying the role of fantastic spaces in children's construction of the self They address fresh topics and texts ranging from the indigenization of the Gothic by Canadian mixed blood Anishinabe writer Drew Hayden Taylor to the lesser known children's books of George Mackay Brown to eco feminist analysis of contemporary verse novels The essays on more canonical texts such as Peter Pan and the Harry Potter series provide new angles from which to revision them Readers of this collection will gain understanding of the complex interactions of place space and identity in children's literature Essays in this book will appeal to those interested in Children's Literature Aboriginal Studies Environmentalism and literature and Fantasy literature
