

Abstract: This is a 100% quantitative, longitudinal, and correlational study conducted in the United States. A national sample of 1,500 adolescents, ages 15–19, was surveyed. The data were collected from 1990 to 1992. The study examined the relationship between the use of alcohol, drugs, and tobacco and the use of violence. The results showed that the use of alcohol, drugs, and tobacco was positively related to the use of violence. The use of alcohol, drugs, and tobacco was also related to the use of violence in the future. The study has implications for the development of prevention and intervention programs for adolescents.

Each school district within the state of Ohio has a different policy. Some schools allow students to be absent for up to 10 days without any consequences. Other schools have a policy that if a student is absent for more than 10 days, they will be required to attend summer school. The policy at each school district is different. It is important for parents to know the policy at their child's school district.
