The Functions of Dreaming Alan Moffitt,Milton Kramer,1993-01-01 Many contemporary neuroscientists are skeptical about the belief that dreaming accomplishes anything in the context of human adaptation and this skepticism is widely accepted in the popular press This book provides answers to that skepticism from experimental and clinical psychologists psychiatrists neurologists and anthropologists Ranging across the human and life sciences the authors provide provocative insights into the enduring question of dreaming from the point of view of the brain the individual and culture The Functions of Dreaming contains both new theory and research on the functions of dreaming as well as revisions of older theories dating back to the founder of modern dream psychology Sigmund Freud Also explored are the many roles dreaming plays in adaptation to daily living in human development and in the context of different cultures search integration identity formation memory consolidation the creation of new knowledge and social communication

The Neuropsychology of Sleep and Dreaming John S. Antrobus,Mario Bertini,2013-01-11 This volume describes how the conceptual and technical sophistication of contemporary cognitive and neuroscientific fields has enhanced the neurocognitive understanding of dreaming sleep Because it is the only naturally occurring state in which the active brain produces elaborate cognitive processes in the absence of sensory input the study of dreaming offers a unique cognitive and neurophysiological view of the production of higher cognitive processes The theory and research included is driven by the search for the most direct relationships linking the neurophysiological characteristics of sleepers to their concurrent cognitive experiences The search is organized around three sets of theoretical models and the three classes of neurocognitive relationships upon which they are based The contributions to this volume demonstrate that the field has begun to move in new directions opened up by the rapid advances in contemporary cognitive science neuropsychology and neurophysiology
