Subversive Spirituality L. Paul Jensen, 2009-08-01 Subversive Spirituality links the practice and study of Christian spirituality with Christian mission. It develops a twofold thesis: grace, spiritual disciplines, and mission practices are inseparably linked in the mission of Jesus of the early church and of several historical renewal movements as well as in a contemporary field research sample and amidst the collapse of space and time evidenced by our culture's increasingly hurried pace of life. More time and space are needed for regular solitary and communal spiritual practices in church mission and leadership structures if Christian mission is to transform people and culture in our time. This requires a subversion of the collapsed spatial and temporal codes that have infected our Christian institutions. Jensen employs methods and approaches from a variety of academic disciplines to explore both spirituality in terms of space and time and mission in terms of deed and word. Specifically, Jensen examines the spirituality and mission of Jesus, the early church, the apostolic fathers, Origen, the Devotio Moderna, the early Jesuits, David Brainerd, and several women in 19th-century Protestant missions. He considers the spirituality and mission that have arisen within the postmodern generations born after 1960. Based on the theological, historical, cultural, and field analyses of this study, a model for spirituality and mission is proposed. The model addresses the contemporary collapse of space and time and appears to have widespread applicability to diverse cultures and eras. Jensen's model is applied to the pluralistic and postmodern milieu of North America with recommendations for spirituality and mission in church mission and educational structures. A derivative model for teaching and practicing spirituality and mission in the academy, which also has application for non-formal leadership development structures, is also proposed.

Verses Woodrow Wallace, 2019-09-25 Verses introduce the insight to man's inevitable journey through a vortex of challenges with his carnal and spiritual self. The author articulates an avenue to spiritual growth through poetry and biblical research using the surround reading style (SRS) which does not deviate from the true message when the poetry is read from top to bottom, bottom to top, or inside out. Woodrow Wallace gives the reader the experience to examine the past, present, and plan the future through intellect, research, and common sense approaches using poetry. Verses offer an experience of solace, direction, and hope through the poetic rhymes of Woodrow Wallace. Look inside, see what poetry can reveal. Death is darkness and life is light; the difference is choice. Woodrow Wallace
