Spinning into Butter Rebecca Gilman, 2011-04-01 Splendid A play of blistering force Gilman is poised to have a major impact on the American theater Chris Jones Variety Set on a college campus in Vermont Spinning into Butter is a new play by a major young American playwright that explores the dangers of both racism and political correctness in America today in a manner that is at once profound disturbing darkly comic and deeply cathartic Rebecca Gilman challenges our preconceptions about race relations writing of a liberal dean of students named Sarah

Daniels who investigates the pinning of anonymous clearly racist letters on the door of one of the college's few African American students. The stunning discovery that there is a virulent racist on campus forces Sarah along with other faculty members and students to explore her feelings about racism leading to surprising discoveries and painful insights that will rivet and provoke the reader as perhaps no play since David Mamet's Oleanna has done. Spinning into Butter had its world premiere at the Goodman Theatre in Chicago in May 1999 and opened at the Vivian Beaumont Theater at Lincoln Center in New York in April 2000. An extraordinarily fresh eloquent and candid new play by a writer of surprising gifts. Richard Christiansen, Chicago Tribune. This is a dangerous searching brilliant play probing the self-inflicted wounds of a self-righteous civilization. The Sunday Times London. Gilman challenges us to think about the dangers of racism and political correctness. Her skillful use of dialog to create character and move the plot is evident in both Boy Gets Girl and Spinning into Butter. Library Journal. Spinning Into Butter Rebecca Claire Gilman, 2000. Sarah Daniels, the liberal and well-intentioned Dean of Students at a small mostly white college in Vermont, is forced to confront her own struggles with racism after a black student begins to receive ugly racist notes. Spinning into butter, 2000, The Theatrical Professoriate Emily Roxworthy, 2019-12-06. This book argues that today's professoriate has become increasingly theatrical largely as a result of neoliberal policies in higher education but also in response to an anti-intellectual scrutiny that has become pervasive throughout the Western world. The Theatrical Professoriate: Contemporary Higher Education and Its Academic Dramas examines how the Western professoriate increasingly finds itself enacting command performances that utilize scripting, characterization, surrogation, and spectacle, the hallmarks of theatricality, toward neoliberal ends. Roxworthy explores how the theatrical nature of today's professoriate and the resultant glut of performances about academia on stage and screen have contributed to a highly ambivalent public fascination with academia. She further documents the theatrical turn witnessed in American higher education as academic institutions use performance to intervene in the diversity issues and disciplinary disparities fueled by neoliberalism. By analyzing academic dramas and their audience reception alongside theoretical approaches, the author reveals how contemporary academia drives the professoriate to perform in what seem like increasingly artificial ways. Ideal for practitioners and students of education, ethnic and science studies. The Theatrical Professoriate deftly intervenes in Performance Studies' still unsettled debates over the differential impact of live versus mediated performances. Boy Gets Girl Rebecca Gilman, 2011-04-01. What is a stalker? And what kind of life can a woman lead when she knows she is being followed obsessively and perhaps dangerously by one? This is the dilemma facing Theresa Bedell, a reporter in New York, in Rebecca Gilman's tensely fascinating new play. When Theresa goes on an awkward blind date with a friend of a friend, she sees no reason to continue the relationship, but the man, an attractive fellow named Tony, thinks otherwise. While Theresa is at first annoyed yet flattered by his continuing attention, her attitude gradually changes to one of fear and fury when he starts violently to menace her and those around her. In brilliantly delineating the kind of terror a woman in full control of her life feels when everything around her suddenly seems to be a threat Gilman probes the dark side of relationships in the 1990s with the rich insight and compelling characterizations that have distinguished her earlier plays and made her one of the most exciting young playwrights working today Connecting the Dots Peggy

Wireman, 2017-09-08 Despite its size and social diversity the United States is one nation and what happens in one city or neighborhood ultimately affects all Americans Connecting the Dots addresses the complex relationships between family and community and between community and other players affecting family and community life including the private sector government nonprofit groups and religious organizations Contrary to much rhetoric Wireman argues that America does not suffer from a loss of family values but from a shift in business practices and public commitments The American dream of work hard buy a home and give your children a better life is no longer realistic for millions of workers both white collar and blue collar At an individual level millions of Americans face significant challenges as they go about trying to meet the everyday responsibilities of earning an income feeding their families maintaining their health finding housing handling everyday household chores and caring for their children Besides identifying top down structures laws and attitudes that create a supportive context for family life the book includes bottom up anecdotal examples to ground its policy oriented discussion It also provides statistical data needed to develop realistic solutions Wireman examines diversity as well since how America handles racial and ethnic differences remains crucial to its future She discusses ways in which communities have created social capital community cohesion and local organizational ability Wireman provides a framework for policymakers local community leaders and neighborhood activists to use in analyzing their situations and selecting the best approach she also describes what various players can and must do to uphold the American dream Connecting the Dots will be of keen interest to sociologists political scientists economists and social workers The Theatre of Les Waters Scott T.

Cummings, 2022-04-28 The Theatre of Les Waters More Like the Weather combines original writings from Les Waters with short essays by a wide range of his collaborators creating a personal and multi faceted portrait of an influential director revered mentor and inspirational theatre artist The book begins with a critical introduction of Waters s work followed by essays written by a wide range of Waters s collaborators over the past four decades These essays are framed by shorter pieces of writing by Waters himself reflections inspirations observations and personal anecdotes At the heart of this book lies the notion that the director s central position in theatrical production is defined by collaboration and that a study of directing should take into account how a director works with playwrights designers actors stage managers and dramaturgs to turn artistic vision into concrete reality on stage An insightful resource for early career or student directors in theatre programs The Theatre of Les Waters sheds light on the art of theatre directing by exploring the work of a major theatre artist whose accomplished career sits at the heart of American theatre in the 21st century Drawing on aspects of memoir case study interview miscellany biography and criticism this is also an enlightening read for anyone with an interest in how theatre

Day Kenneth Goldsmith, 2003 Poetry I am spending my 39th year practicing uncreativity. On Friday, September 1, 2000, I began retyping the day's NEW YORK TIMES word for word, letter for letter, from the upper left-hand corner to the lower right-hand corner, page by page. With these words, Kenneth Goldsmith embarked upon a project which he termed uncreative writing, that is, uncreativity as a constraint-based process, uncreativity as a creative practice. By typing page upon page, making no distinction between article, editorial, and advertisement, disregarding all typographic and graphical treatments, Goldsmith levels the daily newspaper. DAY is a monument to the ephemeral, comprised of yesterday's news, a fleeting moment concretized, captured, then reframed into the discourse of literature. When I reach 40, I hope to have cleansed myself of all creativity. Kenneth Goldsmith.
