

THE STRAITS CHINESE

A Cultural History

Since ancient times, Southeast Asia has been an important link in the trade routes connecting China with India, Arabia and Europe. Contacts between China and the states of the Malay-Indonesian archipelago were reported as early as the fifth century AD, and Chinese tradespeople began to settle in this region in the 15th century. Chinese communities emerged in the port cities of Java, Sumatra and other islands of the archipelago, and especially along the west coast of the Malay Peninsula, in what would become known as the Straits Settlements: Penang, Malacca and Singapore.

These 'Straits Chinese' adapted to a wide variety of local conditions, and — subjected to Malay, European and Indian cultural influences — eventually developed a unique cultural identity. The main characteristics of Straits Chinese arts and architecture are their highly ornate nature, intricate detail and especially their idiosyncratic style, which reflects the above mentioned blend of influences.

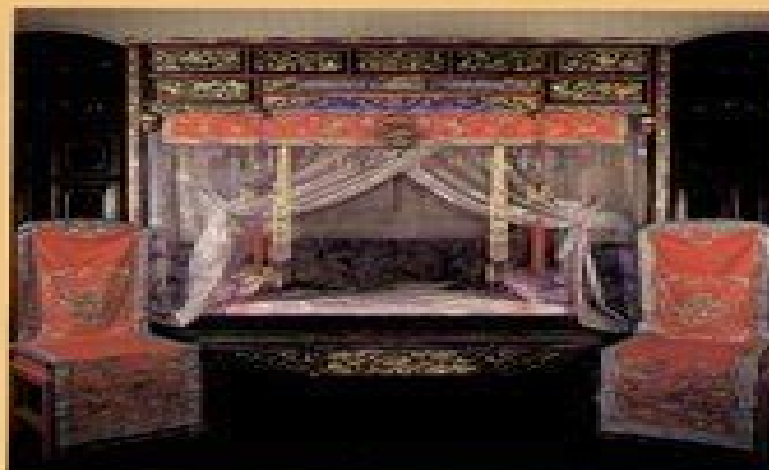

This book provides a detailed account of the development of the Straits Chinese social and material culture. The text is illustrated with many historical photographs, and a very large selection of high quality colour plates of architecture, furniture, costumes, beadwork, textiles, embroidery, gold and silver jewellery, domestic objects and ceramics.

Dr Khoo Joo Ee, a Straits Chinese from Penang, is the curator of the Asian Art Museum in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. She studied fine art and history of art in Malaysia, the Netherlands, England and the USA, and obtained her Doctorate from the University of London in 1976. She has focused more than twenty years of scholarly research on the cultures of Southeast Asia, particularly the Straits Chinese, culminating in this first comprehensive publication on this subject.

Straits Chinese A Cultural History:

The Straits Chinese Joo Ee Khoo, 1996 Imagining Malaya Bernard Z. Keo, 2025-01-02 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence. It is free to read on the Oxford Academic platform and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations. The end of Britain's empire in Southeast Asia in the wake of World War II generated new opportunities for colonial subjects across the region to reimagine themselves as citizens of a dizzying array of potential new nations. While post-war optimism and a global push for decolonisation created an environment where myriad communities felt a palpable sense of possibility for bringing their aspirations of nationhood to life, many of these desires were unfulfilled. Imagining Malaya is an exploration of one of those many imagined nations that never came to be. It narrates a series of seemingly disparate and contradictory political acts by the Peranakan Chinese, a creolised community borne of intermarriage between the earliest Chinese migrants to the region and indigenous Malays in the post-World War II period, to demonstrate that the community were in fact seeking to bring to life a cosmopolitan, inclusive and multi-ethnic imagination of the Malay si an nation. Engaging in a critical re-examination of the intertwined processes of decolonization and nation-making, Imagining Malaya provides an alternative reading of Malay si a s path to merdeka independence from the perspective of the Peranakan. It narrates how a once powerful community at the centre of Malay si an politics and society came undone by their attempts to present an alternative imagination of the nation which challenged the ethnocentrism that came to dominate the country's political life. Rewriting the Peranakan into the centre of Malaysia's national story rather than its periphery is a parable on the complexities and pitfalls of attempting to forge a representative nation-state from a multi-ethnic society during the transition between colony and nation. By bringing the Peranakan imaginary of the nation to life, Bernard Z. Keo makes a case for how studying nations that were unrealized can reveal just as much as investigating those that were. Straits Chinese Porcelain Ming-Yuet Kee (Datin Seri.), 2004 The Straits Chinese Joo Ee Khoo, 1996 Geschiedenis van Chinese kooplieden die zich vestigden in Maleisie aan de Straat van Malakka

The Scripting of A National History Lysa Hong, Jianli Huang, 2008-04-01 Rather than presenting another narrative of Singapore history The Scripting of a National History Singapore and Its Pasts studies the constructed nature of the history endorsed by the state which blurs the distinction between what happened in the past and how the state intends that past to be understood The People's Action Party PAP government's unbroken mandate to rule has come in no small part from the way it explains its lineage and record to Singaporeans The power vested in various aspects of Singapore's history is thus examined through a consideration of past and present politics The authors trace state discourses on Singapore history from the decision immediately after independence to recognize the nineteenth century British acquisition of the island as its founding moment to the 1980s and 1990s when an essentially Confucian heritage was recognized under the rubric of Asian values and finally to an emphasis on the history of racial fragility and harmony in response to the threat of terrorism in the twenty first century Embedded within these discourses is the story of the PAP as the heir of the economic dynamics of the pax Britannica as an exponent of the morality and righteousness of the Chinese scholar gentleman and as the firm hand that balances the interests of the majority Chinese against those of the minority populations particularly the Malays The authors examine the underlying template of Singapore history the negotiation with its immigrant past and the popularization of history through conscription of national heroes The chapters range from considering how political leaders claim to be historians by virtue of being the makers of history to the vicissitudes undergone by two originally private homes turned into symbols of Singapore's Chinese modernity The Scripting of a National History Singapore and Its Pasts is highly relevant not only to academics but also for the Singapore general reader interested to see what are meant to be received wisdoms for the citizenry interrogated in a well reasoned and engaging exercise as well as for an international readership to whom Singapore has become a fascinating enigma They may well be intrigued by the anxieties of being Singaporean

Ethnic Chinese in Singapore and Malaysia Leo Suryadinata, 2002 The nineteen articles in this volume examine the ethnic Chinese in Singapore presenting a fascinating cross country comparison between the past and the present While some issues address the issues of tradition and modernity others trace the process of change especially economic social and cultural change in terms of ethnic Chinese society politics identity business and literature in these two countries and kites have become part of Malaysia's cultural identity in the twentieth century. Author Barbara Leigh celebrates both the ingenuity of the practicing artisan and the technological advances in Malaysia's craft industry. Toponymics Victor R. Savage, Brenda S. A. Yeoh, 2003. This book represents archival work as well as field work and interviews. The introductory chapters provide an overview of the academic importance of studying place names toponymics. In Singapore, there has been much controversy over place names due to the introduction of Hanyu Pinyin names. Singapore street names are also complicated by the fact that the names represent colonial Chinese, Malay, Indian, and Arab names. On top of that, many street and place names are also referred to by various ethnic groups in a colloquial manner which is quite different from the official name. This book will help developers to be able to name various buildings and other developments in a historically appropriate and culturally relevant manner. It will also be of interest to those who would like to know the history and background of Singaporean street names. A History of Singapore, 1819-1988 Constance Mary Turnbull, 1989. This book traces the development of Singapore from 1819 when the English East India Company established a trading settlement on the island until 1985 which ended Singapore's first twenty years as an independent nation. Based on research into government records, newspapers, private papers, and secondary works, it provides the first full-scale history of modern Singapore. Butterflies & Phoenixes Judi Achjadi, Asmoro Damais, 2005. Biblio Asia National Library (Singapore), 2007.

The Cultural History of Lower Kṛṣṇa Valley Dr. A. Ramchandran, 1996 BiblioAsia, 2015-04 Journal of Chinese Overseas, 2009 The Changing Face of Malaysian Crafts Barbara Leigh, 2000 This lavishly illustrated volume shows how items such as metalware songket batik woodcarving
