

An Annotated Bibliography of School And College Information

RUTH E. ANDERSON

THIS bibliography brings up to date information published four years ago¹ for the purpose of assisting counselors, teachers, and librarians in assembling reference material on schools and colleges. It resumes where the earlier effort left off—with the fall of 1948.

As compared with the 91 titles in the 1948 bibliography, the current edition lists 175, a figure which does not truly represent the number of publications which list schools and colleges. The very wealth of material made drastic curtailment necessary. However, the publications omitted are those for the most part which contain listings duplicated in items which are included. Furthermore, two new groups of publications have been added: those helpful to the student or counselor, or both, on the basic problems of post-secondary education; and those which are sources of information on student aid. Included, of course, are new editions of many titles previously listed. In a number of instances, however, no revisions have been made since 1948, and no other publications in the same fields have supplanted them.

No grouping or classification of this material is entirely satisfactory. Of necessity there is much overlapping. For convenience, however, publications are classified as follows:

- I. Schools and Colleges—General listings. Publications, national in scope, many of which give information on institutions at the several academic levels and include schools in many fields of specialization.
- II. Schools and Colleges for Specialized Training—Publications concerned with institutions which offer professional, semi-professional and other types of vocational training.
