the restitution debate restitution is considered as part of a larger set of processes of return that affect museums and collections as well as notions of heritage and object status Covering a range of case studies and a global geography the authors aim to historicize and bring depth to contemporary debates in relation to both the return of material culture and human remains Defined as contested holdings differing museum collections ranging from fine arts to physical anthropology provide connections between the treatment and conceptualization of collections that generally occupy separate realms in the museum world

The Shaping of History Judith Binney, 2021-05-07 The writing of history will only flourish if there is a vehicle for its publication such was Sir Keith Sinclair's vision when he founded The New Zealand Journal of History in 1967 Since then the journal has been the conduit for a flow of remarkable history writing The Shaping of History brings together a selection of essays from its first 30 years by some of the nation's best known historians including Judith Binney Tipene O Regan Claudia Orange Barbara Brookes Alan Ward Jock Phillips and Jamie Belich Their sharp analysis and great storytelling make the collection an essential resource for understanding how New Zealand history is shaped

The Dead and Their Possessions Cressida Fforde, Jane Hubert, Paul Turnbull, 2004 Repatriation of human remains has become a key international heritage concern This extensive collection of papers provides a survey of the current state of repatriation in terms of policy practice and theory

Memoirs of the Polynesian Society, 1915 The Discovery of Islands J. G. A. Pocock, 2005-08-30 The Discovery of Islands consists of a series of linked essays in British history written by one of the world's leading historians of political thought and published over the past three decades Its purpose is to present British history as that of several nations interacting with and sometimes seceding from an imperial state The commentary presents this history as that of an archipelago expanding across oceans to the Antipodes Both New Zealand history and the author's New Zealand heritage inform this vision presenting British history as oceanic and global complementing and occasionally criticising the presentation of that history as European Professor Pocock's interpretation of British history has been hugely influential in recent years making The Discovery of Islands a resource of immense value for historians of Britain and the world

What We Love: Reflections on Ministry, Leadership, and Mission Myk Habets, John Tucker, 2018-03-08 Leadership is a quality that often goes underappreciated or unrecognised in New Zealand church life But this is not how it should be Leadership is a godly and biblical quality and those with such gifts are to be celebrated and cherished This volume is a tribute to one such gifted leader Charles Hewlett eighth Principal of Carey Baptist College 2010-2017 Structured around the theme of What We Love a saying Charles would repeat often throughout his principalship faculty and students reflect on biblical theological and applied themes central to Christian thought and practice today More than an in-house tribute this volume will be of interest and use to pastors and practitioners looking for considered reflections on ministry leadership and mission today

A New Maori Migration Joan Metge, 2021-03-24 Until 1939 the Maori people remained an almost wholly rural community but during and after the second world war increasing numbers of them migrated in search of work to the cities and urban groups of Maori were established This development has significantly affected relationships both between Maori and Europeans and within the Maori people as a whole The importance of Dr Metge s book lies in its presentation of a carefully documented comparative study of two Maori communities one in a traditional rural area and the other in Auckland New Zealand s largest industrial centre Housing and domestic organization marriage patterns kinship structure voluntary associations and leadership in both types of community are discussed The author s survey and conclusions make a valuable practical contribution to Maori social studies and also have a bearing on the world wide problem of the urbanisation of cultural minorities

Rethinking settler colonialism Annie Coombes,2017-03-01 Rethinking settler colonialism focuses on the long history of contact between indigenous peoples and the white colonial communities who settled in Australia Aotearoa New Zealand Canada and South Africa It interrogates how histories of colonial settlement have been mythologised narrated and embodied in public culture in the twentieth century through monuments exhibitions and images and charts some of the vociferous challenges to such histories that have emerged over recent years Despite a shared familiarity with cultural and political institutions practices and policies amongst the white settler communities the distinctiveness which marked these constituencies as variously Australian South African Canadian or New Zealander was fundamentally contingent upon their relationship to and with the various indigenous communities they encountered In each of these countries these communities were displaced marginalised and sometimes subjected to attempted genocide through the colonial process Recently these groups have renewed their claims for greater political representation and autonomy The essays and artwork in this book insist that an understanding of the political and cultural institutions and practices which shaped settler colonial societies in the past can provide important insights into how this legacy of unequal rights can be contested in the present It will be of interest to those studying the effects of colonial powers on indigenous populations and the legacies of imperial rule in postcolonial societies

Transgressing Race Jione Havea,Y. T. Vinayaraj,2023-08-22 Transgressing is an appropriate response to race as a crime against humanity No one chooses their race at birth yet many suffer because of their race And while many people choose to change citizenship their accents and faces can give them away as outsiders Racism thrives on the categorization of people according to their race Like the Black and White dichotomy other racial and ethnic discriminations such as casteism antisemitism Zionism xenophobia and Islamophobia undergird and promote segregation all around the world Dismantling racism requires challenging racialized oppressions and segregations in sacred texts and contexts in beloved traditions and hallowed theologies This book offers such biblical and theological discourses in order to transgress the discriminative segregations of racism in connection with other forms of exploitative systems or shitstems The book engages with racialized biblical texts and religious theologies with acts of racial discrimination in connection with slavery and colonialism with agonies of people in diaspora struggles of postcolonial minoritized people courage of indigenous people to subvert and with the race insensitive practices of theological and religious education The contributors are located
