Taste, Memory David Buchanan,2012-10-25 Taste Memory traces the experiences of modern day explorers who rediscover culturally rich forgotten foods and return them to our tables for all to experience and savor In Taste Memory author David Buchanan explores questions fundamental to the future of food and farming How can we strike a balance between preserving the past maintaining valuable agricultural and culinary traditions and looking ahead to breed

new plants What place does a cantankerous old pear or too delicate strawberry deserve in our gardens farms and markets To what extent should growers value efficiency and uniformity over matters of taste ecology or regional identity While living in Washington State in the early nineties Buchanan learned about the heritage food movement and began growing fruit trees grains and vegetables After moving home to New England however he left behind his plant collection and for several years stopped gardening In 2005 inspired by the revival of interest in regional food and culinary traditions Buchanan borrowed a few rows of growing space at a farm near his home in Portland Maine where he resumed collecting By 2012 he had expanded to two acres started a nursery and small business and discovered creative ways to preserve rare foods In Taste Memory Buchanan shares stories of slightly obsessive urban gardeners preservationists environmentalists farmers and passionate cooks and weaves anecdotes of his personal journey with profiles of leaders in the movement to defend agricultural biodiversity Taste Memory begins and ends with a simple premise that a healthy food system depends on matching diverse plants and animals to the demands of land and climate In this sense of place lies the true meaning of local food
