Guide to Metacognitive Mapping and Critical Thinking in Response to Literature provides a strategic and structured approach to the use of cognitive mapping in response to literature. The allied metacognitive strategy of ThinkTrix incorporating seven basic thinking types or mind actions has emerged from elementary student created cognitive maps known as ThinkLinks, a student friendly term. Students had labeled their thinking on the ThinkLinks and from the hundreds of work samples the seven types of thinking were identified. Placed in a matrix with focal points the thinking types became the ThinkTrix. Originally thought to be cues for teacher questioning, students soon took on the mind actions for their own questioning, responding and mapping. The book offers a procedural and exemplified guide to metacognitive mapping and is built upon the central purpose of student generated connections between life and literature. Once teachers and students have adopted or adapted the suggested framework and strategies in The Shaping of Thought they will always have visual and aware representation of thinking as a learning tool. Problem solving, decision making, inquiring and creating will have joined with an indispensable means to lifetime learning and to the goal of constructing what Jerome Bruner called structures of knowledge. Along with a teaching strategy the book includes strong philosophical underpinnings with The Kaleidoscope of Learning, teacher student tools, numerous activities and samples of student work. Taken seriously the Guide will deepen the understanding of literature and life in the direction of the Big Ideas as envisioned by McTighe and Wiggins and by so many teachers.

Questioning the Native Speaker Construct in Teacher Education Julie Waddington, 2024-09-23. Questioning the construction of the native speaker as an authority and ideal in language education, this book offers a critical and accessible engagement with research problematising notions of nativeness while emphasising the interactional and ongoing nature of identity construction. Crossing disciplinary and geographical boundaries, this book interweaves theoretical frameworks from diverse disciplines examining and challenging language ideologies that underpin and perpetuate systemic inequalities. The author argues that this multidisciplinary approach can help disrupt the fixed identity categories on which the native speaker construct is based, prompting a reconception of how we think about ourselves in relation to others and in relation to our position in the world. Chapters present different teacher models as well as specific strategies and activities to stimulate debate and encourage approaches which prioritise pedagogical competence over the native speaker ideal. Providing an accessible overview of complex issues along with strategic action in teacher education, this book will be of interest to researchers, academics and postgraduate students in the fields of language education, applied linguistics, Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) and teacher education. Teacher educators and language teachers should also benefit from this volume.
