American Luthier Quincy Whitney, 2016-04-12. From the time of Stradivari, the mysterious craft of violinmaking has been a closely guarded, lucrative and entirely masculine preserve. In the 1950s, Carleen Maley Hutchins was a grade-school science teacher, amateur trumpet player, and New Jersey housewife. When musical friends asked her to trade a trumpet for a 75 viola, she decided to try making one, thus setting in motion a surprising career. A self-taught genius who went head-to-head with a closed and ancient guild, Hutchins carved nearly 500 stringed instruments over the course of half a century and collaborated on more than 100 experiments in violin acoustics. In answer to a challenge from a composer, she built the first violin octet, a family of eight violins ranging in size from an eleven-inch treble to a seven-foot contrabass and in register across the gamut of the piano keyboard. She wrote more than 100 technical papers, including two benchmark Scientific American cover articles, founded an international society devoted to violin acoustics, and became the only American and the only woman to be honored in Cremona, Italy, the birthplace of Stradivari. Hutchins died in 2009 at the age of ninety-eight. The most innovative violinmaker of the modern age, she set out to explore two worlds she knew virtually nothing about: violins and acoustical physics.

American Luthier chronicles the life of this unsung woman who altered everything in a world that had changed little in three centuries.

Susie Bright's Sexual Reality Susie Bright, 1992.

Noni Says No Heather Hartt-Sussman, 2011-11-24. Noni can do many things: she can give her baby brother his bottle, she can help her mother in the kitchen, and she can even walk over to her friend Susie's house. But Noni just can't say no. When she was very small, it was easy saying no to everybody, but now that she has a best friend, she wants to please. Noni can't say no to her friend, even when it means she has to hand over a precious toy or when it means agreeing to a hideous haircut or even giving up her bed at a sleepover. But when Noni finally finds her voice, the consequences are not what she or the reader expects.

Heather Hartt-Sussman's story, complemented by the playful illustrations of Genevieve Côté, is a comforting exploration of friendship and of the importance of trusting one's own judgment. Many children as well as many adults will root for Noni as she learns that you can stand up for yourself and still be a good friend.
