

An author bibliography of South Asian ornithology: 1713–2022. Second edition

—Aasheesh Pittie—

Introduction

The document in your hands is an ‘author’ bibliography of South Asian Ornithology, covering over three hundred years, from 1713 up to the end of March 2022. Given its size, it is not unnatural that errors have crept in, especially since every letter, punctuation mark, and number has been physically typed by me over a period of approximately forty years. In compiling it, my aim has been to preserve, and present, as much as possible, the published record of South Asian Ornithology. Since 2011, this database, searchable with keywords, has existed at the website URL: www.southasianornith.in. I update it almost daily; ornithologists have found it beneficial to their work.

That said, I must state that this is still an incomplete record of published South Asian Ornithology. The works that comprise this vast subject are simply too many, located in innumerable places, some accessible, some not, some even unknown to me; journals or magazines that were once popular, are now hard to find, if at all; publications that exist/existed that I am unaware of or have no access to; Theses that stand in institutions’ departments or libraries of which I am not aware.

In presenting this bibliography, in this Printed Document Format, I have one motive—to make it as accurate and as comprehensive as possible. This can be done by you, the author or reader, as you peruse it, either casually, or by going directly to your name, or the name/s of your friends and colleagues, and running a marvellous finger down the list of their work. If you come across errors, please e-mail me the emendations to aasheesh.pittie@gmail.com. In subsequent, annual editions, I will upload corrected versions.

This is still a work in progress, and hence, this introduction is kept purposely short.

You will find some ‘mistakes’ no sooner you begin to browse. These are:

1. Author names: I have tried to enter a name as exactly as it was published. Inexplicably, people have either spelled their names in various ways, or editors/printers erred during the printing process. I plan to retain this format despite the consternation it may cause the affected parties, for if I streamline the names, they may not match with the published name. But if you have a concern, please do inform me.
2. There may be instances where scientific binomials are not italicised. This is the result of migrating databases from one computer to another. I am rectifying this.
3. Duplicate entries. I am tackling them daily, reducing their number. Do inform me about those you come across.
4. I have stared at this database so long and so hard that I have become blind to its imperfections. I request you to alert me of such pitfalls.

I intend to add short biographies, along with a bibliography of biographies, of all authors listed in this work. The latter will comprise a list of references that are biographical in nature, e.g., appreciations, interviews, obituaries, etc., all of which are contained in a grey-shaded box. This is followed by an alphabetical listing of an author’s works. The intention of providing brief biographies is just that, so a reader has an idea of the milestones in an author’s life.

In this, second edition, besides augmenting the database with additional records, especially from Pakistan, after Prof. (Dr.) Gurpartap Singh sent me Aleem Ahmed Khan’s bibliography (Khan 1999), I have deleted almost all duplicate entries, and tried to rationalise works of authors that were listed under various names. These latter are collected within a grey box, below which is the relevant bibliography. I have added biographies of a few hundred authors which, I confess, is a small, and woefully inadequate number. But I request your indulgence in this uphill trek and hope you will send me your own brief biographical details to be included here.

I must clarify here that the ornithological bibliographies of India’s neighbouring countries are imperfectly listed here, mainly due to the incompleteness or inaccessibility of information. I hope to improve upon this.

This document cannot comprise a history of the ornithology of the region because it does not include information on those who contributed to it in various ways, other than publishing, e.g., collectors, ringers, staff, etc.
