Kent,2017-10-17 The utterly fascinating untold story of Soviet Russia's global military mapping program featuring many of the surprising maps that resulted Marina Lewycka author of A Short History of Tractors in Ukrainian From 1950 to 1990 the Soviet Army conducted a global topographic mapping program creating large scale maps for much of the world that included a diversity of detail that would have supported a full range of military planning For big cities like New York Washington D C and London to towns like Pontiac MI and Galveston TX the Soviets gathered enough information to create street level maps The information on these maps ranged from the locations of factories and ports to building heights road widths and bridge capacities Some of the detail suggests early satellite technology while other specifics like detailed depictions of depths and channels around rivers and harbors could only have been gained by Soviet spies on the ground The Red Atlas includes over 350 extracts from these incredible Cold War maps exploring their provenance and cartographic techniques as well as what they can tell us about their makers and the Soviet initiatives that were going on all around us The U.S.S.R. in Maps John C. Department of the Army,1958 Maps of War Jeremy Black,2018-10-18 A magnificent visual survey of how conflict was recorded and planned using maps produced at the time to reveal how warfare and its documentation has changed through the centuries There is little documented mapping of conflict prior to the Renaissance period but from the 17th century onwards military commanders and strategists began to document the wars in which they were involved and later to use mapping to actually plan the progress of a conflict Using contemporary maps this sumptuous new volume covers the history of the mapping of war on land and shows the way in which maps provide a guide to the history of war Content includes The beginnings of military mapping up to 1600 including the impact of printing and the introduction of gunpowder The seventeenth century The focus is on maps to illustrate war rather than as a planning tool and the chapter considers the particular significance of maps of fortifications The eighteenth century The growing need for maps on a world scale reflects the spread of European power and of transoceanic conflict between Europeans This chapter focuses in particular on the American War of Independence The nineteenth century Key developments included contouring and the creation of military surveying Subjects include the Napoleonic Wars and the American Civil War The twentieth century including extended features on the First and Second World Wars including maps showing trench warfare and aerial reconnaissance Much of the chapter focuses on the period from 1945 to the present day including special sections on the Vietnam War and the Gulf Wars

Soviet Union in Maps George Goodall, 1947 100 Maps John O. E. Clark, 2005 Presents a chronological overview of the history of cartography from the earliest maps of prehistory to the engraved maps of the seventeenth century and beyond Includes illustrations A History of the Second World War in 100 Maps Jeremy Black, 2020-11-18 The First World War was marked by an exceptional expansion in the use and production of military cartography But World War II took things even further employing maps charts reconnaissance and the systematic recording and processing of geographical and topographical information on an unprecedented scale As Jeremy Black one of the world's leading military and cartographic historians convincingly shows in this lavish full color book it is impossible to understand the events and outcomes of the Second World War without deep reference to mapping at all levels In World War II maps themselves became the weapons A History of the Second World War in 100 Maps traces how military cartography developed from simply recording and reflecting history to having a decisive impact on events of a global scale Drawing on one hundred key maps from the unparalleled collections of the British Library and other sources many of which have never been published in book form before Jeremy Black takes us from the prewar mapping programs undertaken by both Germany and the United Kingdom in the mid 1930s through the conflict's end a decade later Black shows how the development of maps led directly to the planning of the complex and fluid maneuvers that defined the European theater in World War II for example aerial reconnaissance photography allowed for the charting of beach gradients and ocean depths in the runup to the D Day landings and the subsequent troop movements at Normandy would have been impossible without the help of situation maps and photos In the course of the conflict both in Europe and the Pacific the realities of climate terrain and logistics recorded on maps overcame the Axis powers Maps also became propaganda tools as the pages of Time outlined the directions of the campaigns and the Allies dropped maps from their aircraft In this thrilling and unique book Jeremy Black blends his singular cartographic and military expertise into a captivating overview of World War II from the air sea and sky making clear how fundamental maps were to every aspect of this unforgettable global conflict

British and American News Maps in the Early Cold War Period, 1945-1955 Jeffrey P. Stone, 2019-06-06 During the early years of the Cold War England and the United States both found themselves reassessing their relationship with their former ally the Soviet Union and the status of their own special relationship was far from certain As Jeffrey P Stone argues maps from British and American news journals from this period became a valuable tool for relating the new realities of the Cold War to millions of readers These maps were vehicles for political ideology revealing both obvious and subtle differences in how each country viewed global geopolitics at the onset of the Cold War Richly illustrated with news maps cartographic advertisements and cartoons from the era this book reveals the idiomatic political cultural and material differences contributing to these divergent cartographic visions of the Cold War world
