Spatial Strategies In Retailing:

Spatial Strategies in Retailing R. Laulajainen, 2012-12-06 Locational research has long been concerned with industrial plants and the site selection of retail stores. The major determinants and decision processes now seem to be fairly well understood. Consequently, the research frontier in retailing has shifted to a higher spatial level: the location of stores in the regional and national context. Certainly, stores tend to be found where the population is, but beyond this obvious truth it is by no means outright clear how retailing companies with different formats and home bases perceive space and how space affects their performance, if at all. When the question is put this way, what appears trivial at first undergoes a change and seems now complex enough to be worth a closer look. It need not be true to cite the most obvious of examples that regions which are attractive as places of living for high school and college students; the customary data base are also worthwhile from the business point of view. No attempt is made here to penetrate the topic at analytical depth. The ambition is simply to discover, with the help of numerous descriptive examples, whether any order does exist in the high level spatial behavior of retailing companies.

The Emergence of Modern Retailing 1750-1950 Gary Akehurst, Nicholas Alexander, 2013-02-01 The history of retail business development is an under-researched area. This book considers the emergence and development of modern retailing from an historical and management perspective in the period 1750-1950, addressing the need for further research and providing examples of current research activity. It considers the early emergence of retail forms in the late eighteenth century, the evolution of retail forms in the nineteenth century, and the late adaptation of retail management in the early twentieth century.

Retail Structure Gary Akehurst, Nicholas Alexander, 2012-10-12 First Published in 1996. The authors define retail structure in a retail distribution context as a snapshot of the state of play in the competitive struggle between retail companies and businesses, each of which is seeking to not only survive but to grow. The studies in this volume were first published in The Service Industries Journal. Taken as a whole, they serve two purposes: first, they introduce the concept and process of retail structure taken from the viewpoint of a continuing competitive struggle for market supremacy; and second, they serve as an introduction to the wider study of retail development.

Handbook of Research on Strategic Retailing of Private Label Products in a Recovering Economy Gómez-Suárez, Mónica, Martínez-Ruiz, María Pilar, 2016-06-20 As the global market continues to recuperate from economic downfall, it is essential for private label products to find ways to compete with alternatives offered by wholesale and national retailers. In many cases, it becomes difficult for off-brand products to generate market appeal when consumers have preconceived notions about the quality of generic products and loyalty to branded products. The Handbook of Research on Strategic Retailing of Private Label Products in a Recovering Economy emphasizes advertising and promotional approaches being utilized, as well as consumer behavior and satisfaction in response to marketing strategies and the sensitive pricing techniques being implemented to endorse generic and store brand products.

available on the market Highlighting brand competition between wholesalers retailers and private brand names following a global economic crisis this publication is an extensive resource for researchers graduate students economists and business professionals European Retail Research Bernhard Swoboda,Dirk Morschett,Thomas Rudolph,Peter Schnedlitz,Hanna Schramm-Klein,2009-09-30 The aim of EUROPEAN RETAIL RESEARCH is to publish interesting manuscripts of high quality and innovativeness with a focus on retail researchers retail lecturers retail students and retail executives As it has always been retail executives are part of the target group and the knowledge transfer between retail research and retail management remains a part of the publication s concept Retail Geography Shuguang Wang,Paul Du,2020-05-26 The retail sector is an integral part of a national economy From the political economy perspective all consumer goods have surplus values locked up in them the surplus values are not realized until the consumer goods are purchased by consumers through various distribution channels As such retailing is the essential link between production and consumption The success of a retail business depends on two general factors the location of the retail outlet and management of the business Both factors are equally important If the business is located in the wrong place with the wrong customer base it will not generate expected sales Similarly if the business is poorly managed and operated it will not perform well even if the location is right Influenced by both traditional and new location theories Retail Geography is conceptualized and organized using the retail planning process as the framework The technical and methodological chapters help guide the reader with detailed descriptions of the techniques and are supported with practical examples to reflect the latest software development Retail Geography provides a state of the art summary and will act as a core textbook for undergraduate and graduate students of economic geography interested in specializing in retail and business geography The practical examples also make it a valuable handbook for practitioners in the field as well as students of retail management and commercial real estate management Retail Change Rosemary D.F. Bromley,Colin J Thomas,2002-11-01 The economic social and environmental implications of recent changes in retailing constitute significant contemporary issues which are the focus of this timely book Retail change deals with the internationalization of retailing the development of shopping centres in the city and at suburban sites and the growth of leisure shopping It provides an up to date review of the central questions faced by undergraduate students in planning business studies and geography The retail environment of developed economies has undergone revolutionary change since the 1970s and the process is far from over In the book the major elements central to contemporary retail change are developed across the whole spectrum of spatial scales relevant to present day society The first part adopts an economic perspective and focuses on the process of business concentration and its increasingly international orientation This is followed by analyses of change in the urban region concentrating on the emergence of the great variety of new retail forms associated with retail decentralization The planning implications of retail change are developed in the third part The future of the city centre and other traditional shopping centres is examined in the light of challenges presented by new facilities Alternative future scenarios contingent upon laissez faire or interventionist government policy controls are also discussed The social implications of retail change are developed in the final section All students and researchers concerned with the evolution and development of the retail sector of advanced economies will welcome this book as an authoritative source of contemporary findings and commentary Rosemary D Bromley and Colin J Thomas are Lecturers in Geography at the University College of Swansea Wales This book is intended for undergraduate students taking courses in economic geography and retailing in departments of geography business studies planning etc

The Changing Face of Retailing in the Asia Pacific Elizabeth Howard, 2013-10-18 Retailing in the countries of Asia Pacific is changing dramatically Changes which took decades even centuries elsewhere are happening in a few years The growth of larger firms and the arrival of international retailers are changing the business landscape bringing the consistent supply and presentation of wider ranges of goods to consumers and leading to the development of new kinds of retail stores and modern shopping malls often in new locations All of these developments are important for economic growth and for consumers and their lifestyles They raise questions for governments about foreign investment about social and environmental change and about the fate of traditional retailers This book examines the trends seeking to understand how far they are global and how local circumstances affect developments International retailers have spread across the region but not always successfully Studies in several countries look at their processes of growth and some of the reasons for success and failure A review of changing regulation across the region suggests regulators should be concerned to avoid the problems of overconcentration of retail power and country studies reflect on the effects of regulation as well as cultural and other influences on change This book was published as a special issue of Asia Pacific Business Review      Retailing: Comparative and international retailing
