The Future Of The Disabled In Liberal Society An Ethical Analysis:

FUTURE OF THE DISABLED IN LIBERAL SOCIETY Hans S. Reinders, 2000 Questions developments in human genetic research from the perspective of persons with mental disabilities and their families Hans S Reinders argues that when we use terms such as disease and defect to describe conditions that genetic engineering might well eliminate we may also be assuming that disabled lives are deplorable and horrific Reinders points out that the possibility of preventing disabled lives is at odds with our commitment to the full inclusion of disabled citizens in society The tension between these different perspectives is of concern to all of us as genetic testing procedures proliferate Reinders warns that preventative uses of human genetics might even become a threat to the social security and welfare benefits that help support disabled persons and their families Reinders also argues that this conflict cannot be resolved or controlled on the level of public morality Because a liberal society makes a commitment to individual freedom and choice its members can consider the diagnostic and therapeutic uses of human genetics as options available to individual citizens A liberal society will defend reproductive freedom as a matter of principle Citizens may select their offspring in accord with their own personal values Reinders concludes that the future of the mentally disabled in liberal society will depend on the strength of our moral convictions about the value of human life rather than on the protective force of liberal morality

Receiving the Gift of Friendship Hans S. Reinders,2008-04-14 Does what we are capable of doing define us as human beings If this basic anthropological assumption is true where can that leave those with intellectual disabilities unable to accomplish the things that we propose give us our very humanity Hans Reinders here makes an unusual claim about unusual people those who are profoundly disabled are people just like the rest of us He acknowledges that at first glance this is not an unusual claim given the steps taken within the last few decades to bring the rights of those with disabilities into line with the rights of the mainstream But he argues that cannot be the end of the matter because the disabled are human beings before they are citizens To live a human life properly he says they must not only be included in our institutions and have access to our public spaces they must also be included in other people s lives not just by natural necessity but by choice Receiving the Gift of Friendship consists of three parts 1 Profound Disability 2 Theology and 3 Ethics Overturning the commonsense view of human beings Reinders s argument for a paradigm shift in our relation to people with disabilities is founded on a groundbreaking philosophical theological consideration of humanity and of our basic human commonality Moreover Reinders gives his study human vividness and warmth with stories of the profoundly disabled from his own life and from the work of Jean Vanier and Henri Nouwen in L Arche communities Practice and Profile Johan Hegeman, Margaret Edgell, Henk Jochemsen, 2011-02-28 Too many students are disappointed They want to make a difference in their chosen professions They are inspired by successful visionaries but they have little idea how to follow in their oversized footsteps Their colleges and universities promise more professional development than they can possibly deliver especially in terms of moral development for the professions Experts coming from a range of perspectives in higher education agree that moral formation for the professions must increasingly take place in higher education Tragically the recent evolution of teaching has stripped educators of much of the rationale for moral formation The recent record of moral lapses by managers testifies to this crisis of moral education The authors call for a revival of moral formation in higher education for the professions They supply the needed resources to redesign classic as well as cutting edge teaching and learning toward practical moral education in the professions This book is carefully designed to apply traditional Christian principles appropriately to evolving professional practices The authors strategies address the problems surrounding calling vocation and the growing need for virtue training in the professions In particular the authors provide clear direction for how to meet the need for professional profiles that meet the standards of the marketplace Practice and Profile provides the reader with a tested and proven model of faith formation appropriate to the professions It also goes into specific useful detail as to how the model mobilizes learning in classroom and professional settings It aids institutions of higher learning in their struggle with demands for new learning environments and new moral competencies Foremost it gives students a grasp of how to become dedicated professionals who make a difference Defending the Genetic Supermarket Colin

Gavaghan, 2007-03-12 The controversial topic of the technology of Pre implantation Genetic Diagnosis and the muddled approach to this subject adopted by the UK Parliament is explored in detail in this volume The author takes the viewpoint that the HFEA has taken insufficient notice to date of certain core ethical principles and makes the case for a much more ethically consistent and humane system than has been managed so far Arguing that many of the fears and objections levied against Robert Nozick s notion of the Genetic Supermarket by disability activists christian bioethicists and radical feminists amongst others are internally inconsistent philosophically unsound or merely highly improbable the author considers a number of individual policy decisions of the HFEA and addresses such questions as Can a case be made out for state involvement in such decisions Who stands to be harmed by a supermarket model Are any ethical principles or societal interests threatened by it This book is an essential resource for law students of all levels and professionals working within or interested in medical and healthcare law and medical genetics
