Kaiser,2017-03-14 The Geography of Nationalism in Russia and the USSR is an important addition to the small library of essential works on the collapse of the Soviet empire The first attempt to construct and test broad theoretical propositions about place and territoriality in the making of nations it examines the critical social processes underlying the formation of nations and homelands in Russia and the USSR during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries Robert Kaiser finds that for the most part national self consciousness was only beginning to supplant a localist mentality by the time of World War I The national problem faced by Lenin was fundamentally different from the more difficult nationalist challenge that confronted Gorbachev In Kaiser s place based theory the homeland once created in the imaginations of the indigenous masses powerfully structured national processes and international relations Indigenization from below became an active competitor with nationality policies that promoted Russification resulting in the restructuring of ethnic stratification to favor indigenes in their own respective home republics and to challenge Russian dominance outside Russia The revolutionary changes occurring since 1989 Kaiser argues should therefore be seen as part of a longer process of indigenization Originally published in 1994 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 Geographic Perspectives on Soviet Central Asia Robert Lewis,2003-10-04 In a unique survey based on new census data this book highlights the region s geographic economic and
