Spatial and Temporal Analysis in Ecology Richard Melville Cormack, J. K. Ord, 1979 Reviews the standard methods for analyzing temporal and spatial patterns Spatial patterns Reviews the recent statistical and ecology literature and presents several new studies of mapped data on patterns of trees An extensive review of the spatial competition between individuals which considers both the analysis of spatial patterns and the design of experiments to study competition A Course in Mathematical and Statistical Ecology Anil Gore, S.A. Paranjpe, 2013-04-17 As the world enters the new millennium mankind faces a series of new problems many of them created by man himself These include overpopulation air and water pollution global warming accumulation of greenhouse gases damage to the ozone layer and loss of biodiversity Perhaps these problems were around even earlier in an incipient stage but they have now assumed global proportions and are uppermost in the minds of all A natural consequence is enhanced interest in sciences connected with these problems Ecology is a field that is immensely useful in understanding many of them In the seventies nature conservation became a concern of wide sections of society well beyond the small group of expert ecologists Species extinction and depletion of biological resources were seen as major threats to human welfare It was therefore natural for scientists from different disciplines to seek reasons behind these developments We were no exceptions and when opportunity to interact with ecologists as statistical consultants came we found ourselves reading more and more of ecology and evolutionary biology Several years ago we proposed starting of an elective one semester course on statistical ecology for graduate students of statistics of Pune University

Greg Jones, 1997 Conservation Biology Principles for Forested Landscapes Joan Voller, Scott Harrison, 2011-11-01 This book is intended to provide information to those who wish to interact with the landbase in an ecologically sustainable manner Practitioners charged with the administration of land based programs in industry and government will find the information presented useful It should also be a resource for many community groups involved in land use decision making Humans continue to use forests and make decisions about land use without perfect information Conservation Biology Principles for Forested Landscapes is intended to enable the improvement of planning and decision making processes by providing ecological information on issues of forest use Current approaches are not working Where information exists on new ecologically sustainable approaches practitioners should switch Where the information on a better approach is not yet available practitioners should replace the current inappropriate approach with a variety of flexible ones that offer the opportunity to change with new knowledge Perspectives on Spatial Data Analysis Luc Anselin, Sergio J. Rey, 2009-12-24 Spatial data analysis has seen explosive growth in recent years Both in mainstream statistics and econometrics as well as in many applied fields the attention to space location and interaction has become an important feature of scholarly work The methods developed to deal with problems of spatial pattern recognition spatial autocorrelation and spatial heterogeneity have seen greatly increased adoption in part due to the availability of user friendly desktop software Through his theoretical and applied work Arthur Getis has been a major contributing figure in this development In this volume we take both a retrospective and a prospective view of the field We use the occasion of the retirement and move to emeritus status of Arthur Getis to highlight the contributions of his work In addition we aim to place it into perspective in light of the current state of the art and future directions in spatial data analysis To this end we elected to combine reprints of selected classic contributions by Getis with chapters written by key spatial scientists These scholars were specifically invited to react to the earlier work by Getis with an eye toward assessing its impact tracing out the evolution of related research and to reflect on the future broadening of spatial analysis The organization of the book follows four main themes in Getis' contributions Spatial analysis Pattern analysis Local statistics Applications For each of these themes the chapters provide a historical perspective on early methodological developments and theoretical insights assessments of these contributions in light of the current state of the art as well as descriptions of new techniques and applications

Quantitative Methods in Landscape Ecology Monica G. Turner, Robert H. Gardner, 1991 Landscape ecology as a modern interdisciplinary science is making use increasingly of quantitative research techniques adopted from other fields So far no synthetic reference has been available to those wishing to acquaint themselves with new approaches to quantitative analysis of spatial heterogeneity at the landscape level This book seeks to meet this need by providing a conceptual framework and illustrating potential applications for methods such as pattern analysis spatial statistics fractals modeling broad scale studies and extrapolation across scales Each technique is discussed in sufficient detail to be adaptable to a variety of research problems Quantitative Methods in Landscape Ecology will be an important resource for researchers and students of landscape and ecosystem ecology in understanding and analyzing the dynamics of complex spatial systems

Numerical Taxonomy Joseph Felsenstein, 2013-06-29 The NATO Advanced Study Institute on Numerical Taxonomy took place on the 4th 16th of July 1982 at the Kur und Kongresshotel Residenz in Bad Windsheim Federal Republic of Germany This volume is the proceedings of that meeting and contains papers by over two thirds of the participants in the Institute Numerical taxonomy has been attracting increased attention from systematists and evolutionary biologists It is an area which has been marked by debate and conflict sometimes bitter Happily this meeting took place in an atmosphere of Gemütlichkeit though scarcely of unanimity I believe that these papers will show that there is an increased understanding by each taxonomic school of each others positions This augurs a period in which the debates become more concrete and specific Let us hope that they take place in a scientific atmosphere which has occasionally been lacking in the past Since the order of presentation of papers in the meeting was affected by time constraints I have taken the liberty of rearranging them into a more coherent subject ordering The first group of papers taken from the opening and closing days of the meeting debate philosophies of classification The next two sections have papers on congruence clustering and ordination A notable concern of these participants is the comparison and testing of classifications This has been missing from many previous discussions of numerical classification Quarterly Publication of the American Statistical Association, 2002 Encyclopedia of Statistical Sciences, Volume 12, 2005-12-16 ENCYCLOPEDIA OF STATISTICAL SCIENCES Statistical Distributions in Ecological Work J. Stiteler, 1979

The past decade has seen a great increase in the level of interest in bringing multivariate techniques to bear on problems in ecology. In some cases the approach has been to simply apply one of the standard multivariate techniques. In other cases the uniqueness of the ecological problem has required that new and innovative techniques be developed. The Routledge Handbook of Landscape Ecology Robert A. Francis, James D.A. Millington, George L.W. Perry, Emily S. Minor, 2021-09-09. The Handbook provides a supporting guide to key aspects and applications of landscape ecology to underpin its research and teaching. A wide range of contributions written by expert researchers in the field summarize the latest knowledge on landscape ecology theory and concepts, landscape processes, methods and tools, and emerging frontiers. Landscape ecology is an interdisciplinary and holistic discipline, and this is reflected in the chapters contained in this Handbook. Authors from varying disciplinary backgrounds tackle key concepts such as landscape structure and function, scale and connectivity, landscape processes such as disturbance, flows and fragmentation, methods such as remote sensing and mapping, fieldwork, pattern analysis, modelling and participation, and engagement in landscape planning and emerging frontiers such as ecosystem services, landscape approaches to biodiversity conservation and climate change. Each chapter provides a blend of the latest scientific understanding of its focal topics along with considerations and examples of their application from around the world. An invaluable guide to the concepts, methods and applications of landscape ecology, this book will be an important reference text for a wide range of students and academics in ecology, geography, biology and interdisciplinary environmental studies.
