Japanese Multinationals in Europe Ken-ichi Ando, 2005-01-01 Ando s well researched comparison of Japanese automobile and pharmaceutical investment in Europe not only provides a compelling demonstration of the strategic and organizational diversity of contemporary Japanese multinationals but illustrates the challenges faced by all multinationals by the complex and multi faceted process of European integration Geoffrey Jones Harvard Business School US This book explores the regional strategy and management of Japanese MNEs in Europe Ken ichi Ando investigates using case studies of the auto and pharmaceutical industries how these companies can and do overcome the inherent difficulties and opportunities of trading in Europe including the problems posed by cultural differences and geography alongside the opportunities of expanding markets While these companies are global players they must increasingly be aware of and evolve in response to European economic integration The strategy setting and management are influenced by company and industry specific factors and some common features can be found The locational and entry strategies are based both on the multinationals own resources and capability and on the changing locational conditions while pan European management is conducted to achieve the benefits of multinationality at the regional level The mutual relationships between the location of subsidiaries the entry mode and the pan European operation are clearly shown from the detailed analysis at the company level The impacts and limits of the EU on multinationals are also confirmed in the book and the importance of national characteristics is suggested Scholars and graduate students studying international business and economics as well as European integration will find this book of great interest

Energy Transitions and the Future of Gas in the EU Gökçe Mete, 2019-11-23 This book assesses the impact of energy transitions on the future of natural gas in the EU energy mix As we approach 2050 the requirement to sharply decrease CO2 and other GHG emissions means that the role of gas infrastructure in the EU and beyond will change drastically But what does such change mean To address this question the author critically analyses the EU's evolving natural gas market policy and law Clearly structured throughout the book explores the following questions How can we maximise the potential of gas infrastructure to reduce carbon emissions What are the lessons learned from decision making experience in the natural gas sector Is the EU moving towards or away from a climate neutral gas sector How will green and low carbon gas technologies be supported And are proposals to drive a growing share of hydrogen biomethane and synthetic methane to the system just an excuse to prolong fossil fuel operations The book explores whether the EU will continue to subsidise natural gas projects or decarbonise the gas grid before 2050 and at what cost

Recommendations are proposed for a new regulatory and policy framework for development and operation of hydrogen pipelines injection of biomethane into the existing gas grid and for pipelines carrying CO2 Filling an important gap in the literature this book aims to develop an understanding of and clarify the complex range of legislation involved within a single analytical framework Although the focus is mainly on the future of gas in the EU the findings and recommendations are relevant for a much wider geography This book will be an invaluable reference to policy makers and practitioners as well as researchers and students across the social sciences interested in the future of energy
