The Transition of Students with Learning Disabilities: A Case Study

Sheryl Evelo & Lynda Price
General College-University of Minnesota

Abstract

This case study illustrates the transition process of one individual with learning disabilities during a 3 year period. It describes her experiences as she graduated from high school and went on to a local community college. Specific transition objectives, personalized counseling, and individual accommodations are discussed in detail, with both secondary and postsecondary examples. Relevant research and recommendations pertinent to service providers who work with adolescents and adults with learning disabilities are also provided.

Introduction

One of the most topical transition issues being examined today is the service delivery for adolescents and adults with learning disabilities. There are currently numerous articles, conference presentations and even books focused on this new and frequently unexplored area. And yet, many questions still remain. In order to understand and better define the transition process for students with learning disabilities, we have chosen a case study approach to provide a comprehensive example of what transition is and how it was addressed with one student. It is hoped that the information derived from this case study will not only expand knowledge of transition but assist service providers in facilitating the successful transition of students from school to postsecondary settings and employment.

The framework for the service delivery to the student with learning disabilities in this study was provided through the LD Transition Project, a 3-year, federally-funded research/demonstration project located at the General College of the University of Minnesota. Forty high school juniors and seniors with learning disabilities were selected by the Project transition counselors. These participants received intensive, personalized service over a 3-year period as they moved from the secondary to postsecondary setting of their choice. The Ministry In Transition A Case Study Of A Theological Education:

The Ministry in Transition Yoshio Fukuyama, 1972 The ministry like many other professions is in crisis Uncertainty about its functions in this age of rapid social and technological change is due largely to conflicts between its traditionally dominant institutional form and its newer role as an agent for social reform This uncertainty afflicts not only practicing and potential ministers many of whom wish to combine their religious vocation with other careers but also the laity who hold differing views on the purposes and functions of the church This study is an empirical investigation of a major Protestant denomination s recruitment and training of its ministers and of the ministers perception of their professional role In analyzing some of the roots of the uncertainty that many ministers feel about their vocation Dr Fukuyama suggests a theoretical model of the ministry based on its institutional individualistic and social forms and examines the corresponding styles of theological education On the basis of his findings Dr Fukuyama argues that if the church is to preserve its leadership it must develop alternative institutional forms in which those committed to social reform can pursue their ministry

Theological Reflection and Education for Ministry Professor John E Paver, 2013-05-28 A major and continuing problem for theological education and the practice of Christian ministry is how to best achieve a genuine integration between theory and practice theology and experience The key claim of this book is that theological reflection beginning with experience is a method of integration and that pastoral supervision is a vehicle for theological reflection In establishing this claim John Paver demonstrates that the model and method have potential to be a catalyst for reform within theological colleges and seminaries Three different theological reflection models are developed and critiqued in this book and their capacity to be developed in particular contexts is explored This book does not stop at ministry cultural and personal integration but is bold enough to make recommendations for structural integration within the theological institution The Wiley Blackwell Companion to Practical Theology Bonnie J. Miller-McLemore, 2014-01-07 Through a series of essays contributed by leading experts in the field The Wiley Blackwell Companion to Practical Theology presents an introduction to practical theology as a major area of Christian study and practice including an overview of its key developments themes methods and future directions The first comprehensive reference work to provide a survey description and analysis of practical theology as an area of study A range of leading scholars in the field provide original contributions on the major areas issues and figures in practical theology Reviews an extensive range of methods for studying theology in practice along with sub disciplines in theological education such as pastoral care and preaching Covers developments in the discipline in a range of global contexts and distinct Christian traditions Shows how practical theology is relevant to everyday life Renewal Mark Wild, 2019-03-21 In the decades following World War II a movement of clergy and laity sought to restore liberal Protestantism to the center of American urban life Chastened by their failure to avert war and the Holocaust and troubled by missionaries complicity with colonial regimes they redirected their energies back home Renewal explores the rise and fall of this movement which began as an effort to restore the church's standing but wound up as nothing less than an openhearted crusade to remake our nation's cities These campaigns reached beyond church walls to build or lend a hand to scores of organizations fighting for welfare social justice and community empowerment among the increasingly nonwhite urban working class Church leaders extended their efforts far beyond traditional evangelicalism often dovetailing with many of the contemporaneous social currents coursing through the nation including black freedom movements and the War on Poverty Renewal illuminates the overlooked story of how religious institutions both shaped and were shaped by postwar urban America

Moral Development as a Component of the Education of Protestant Ministers Klaus Dieter Issler, 1984 Transitioning from a Theological College to a Christian University Semeon Mulatu, 2017-10-14 The decision for ministerial training institutions to become broader educational institutions that offer courses outside the traditional areas of theology is certainly not unique to a specific geographical context While there are many examples of notable institutions making this transition in North America and Europe very little reflection has been carried out in the global south In this book Dr Semeon Mulatu looks to institutions in Kenya Ethiopia Uganda and the Democratic Republic of Congo that have completed or embarked upon the journey to university status The study explores the motivations of educational leaders in pursuing such a transition as well as the impact it has had or will have on the continued theological education and Christian mission of the institution Here you will find answers to key questions such as What is lost and gained by a seminary becoming a university What are the challenges along the road Is it all worth it in the end
