State Level Data On Health Care Access And Financing:

State-level Databook on Health Care Access and Financing David Liska, Niall J. Brennan, Brian K. Bruen, 1998 As the debate over the health care crisis continues state policymakers can turn once again to the Databook for an up to date comprehensive picture of the health system at the state level The third edition of this invaluable sourcebook provides data on the insurance coverage of different groups the characteristics of the uninsured Medicaid enrollees and expenditures health status health care costs access and utilization and state specific demographics and economic profiles It also reports totals for the United States and averages for the nine Census regions Each section has a short introduction discussing the measures included and highlighting particularly significant results Health Care Financing Review, 1998 State-level Data

System Access Nicoleta Serban, 2019-12-24 A guide to a holistic approach to healthcare measurement aimed at improving access and outcomes Healthcare System Access is an important resource that bridges two areas of research access modeling and healthcare system engineering The book's mathematical modeling approach highlights fundamental approaches on measurement of and inference on healthcare access This mathematical modeling facilitates translating data into knowledge in order to make data driven estimates and projections about parameters patterns and trends in the system The complementary engineering approach uses estimates and projections about the system to better inform efforts to design systems that will yield better outcomes The author a noted expert on the topic offers an in depth exploration of the concepts of systematic disparities reviews measures for systematic disparities and presents a statistical framework for making inference on disparities with application to disparities in access The book also includes information health outcomes in the context of prevention and chronic disease management In addition this text Integrates data and knowledge from various fields to provide a framework for decision making in transforming access to healthcare Provides in depth material including illustrations of how to use state of art methodology large data sources and research from various fields Includes end of chapter case studies for applying concepts to real world conditions Written for health systems engineers Healthcare System Access Measurement Inference and Intervention puts the focus on approaches to measure healthcare access and addresses important enablers of such change in healthcare towards improving access and outcomes Transforming Mental Health Services Howard H. Goldman, Jeffrey A. Buck, Kenneth S. Thompson, 2009-06-26 This compendium of 17 articles addresses the goals set forth by the President's New Freedom Commission on Mental Health in its 2003 report Achieving the Promise Transforming Mental Health Care in America The report represents the first time since the Carter Administration that such a high level group evaluated U S mental health care The report painted a dismal picture of the nation's mental health system saying the system was so broken that it was beyond simple repair The Commission said that current services focused on managing disabilities rather than helping patients achieve a meaningful life in their communities It also stated that mental health service providers ignored the preferences of consumers and their families The articles in Transforming Mental Health Services Implementing the Federal Agenda for Change originally published between 2006 and 2009 in Psychiatric Services journal of the American Psychiatric Association offer recommendations to assist adults with serious mental illness and children with serious emotional disturbances They include a series of reforms in which the emphasis is on recovery as an achievable goal and the need for a person centered orientation in service delivery There is also discussion of the reasons many service providers resist using a recovery orientation and how this can be remedied Transforming Mental Health Services Implementing the Federal Agenda for Change consists of updates of papers written by the Commission s subcommittees addressing issues fundamental to those living with mental illness It is organized into four sections The first focuses on the interface between mental health and general health and on employment housing and Medicaid financing The second continues addressing financing and Medicaid as well as issues related to school mental health recovery transformation of data systems and acceleration of research The third includes reports from four states with transformation initiatives designed to ensure that consumers have a strong voice in the development of recovery oriented services The final section describes progress five years after the President s Commission Report and concludes with a proposal by the current director of the Center for Mental Health Services for a public health model of mental health care for the 21st century This compilation of well researched and well written articles offers an excellent resource for frontline care providers facility administrators and advocates It serves as an equally valuable resource for state policy makers who wish to present a convincing case that change is happening and that the recommendations can be translated into effective policies Although consumers and their families will receive support for their perception that service providers ignore their needs they will also be encouraged that change for the better is coming to the U S mental health care system Health Security Act of 1993

Bruhn,Howard M. Rebach,2014-05-27 This volume conceptualizes caregiving as an emerging sociological issue involving complex and fluctuating roles The authors contend that caregiving must be considered in the context of the life span with needs that vary according to age developmental levels mental health needs and physical health demands of both caregivers and care recipients As the nature and functions of caregiving evolve it has become a critical and salient issue in the lives of individuals in all demographic socioeconomic and ethnic categories This volume frames caregiving as a sociological issue and addresses a number of central concerns such as Caregiving is a life span experience associated with aging and the roles of spouses and adult children Caregiving involves a complex of social system variables that influence the social support and services to caregivers and care recipients The nature of the relationship among family caregivers professional caregivers and the care recipient are embedded in their interaction and dynamics influenced by the internal and external variables that inhibit or facilitate the care situation How can caregiving be integrated with a public health agenda What disparities or inequalities exist in caregiving and what are the barriers that sustain them What community based interventions need to be developed to improve caregiving
