distinct from discrimination on the basis of race with which it is often conflated Preferential treatment of lighter skin tones over darker occurs within racial and ethnic groups as well as between them While America has made progress in issues of race over the past decades discrimination on the basis of color continues to be a constant and often unremarked part of life In Color Matters Kimberly Jade Norwood has collected the most up to date research on this insidious form of discrimination including perspectives from the disciplines of history law sociology and psychology Anchored with historical chapters that show how the influence and legacy of slavery have shaped the treatment of skin color in American society the contributors to this volume bring to light the ways in which colorism affects us all influencing what we wear who we see on television and even which child we might pick to adopt Sure to be an eye opening collection for anyone curious about how race and color continue to affect society Color Matters provides students of race in America with wide ranging overview of a crucial topic

biracial children are either downgraded or upgraded into a tri racial system of categories depending at least in part upon their heritage Drawing also on popular adoption literature and information in the public domain the book provides a critical interpretation of the discursive practices of private adoption and argues that despite the current discourse of equity in contemporary adoption African American children continue to be marginalized as bargain basement deals Color blind individualism extends beyond the U S to our new global reality where children are simply another commodity within the transnational marketplace of adoption

The Managed Hand Miliann Kang,2010-06-02

Two women virtual strangers sit hand in hand across a narrow table both intent on the same thing achieving the perfect manicure Encounters like this occur thousands of times across the United States in nail salons increasingly owned and operated by Asian immigrants This study looks closely for the first time at these intimate encounters focusing on New York City where such nail salons have become ubiquitous Drawing from rich and compelling interviews Miliann Kang takes us inside the nail industry asking such questions as Why have nail salons become so popular Why do so many Asian women and Korean women in particular provide these services Kang discovers multiple motivations for the manicure from the pampering of white middle class women to the artistic self expression of working class African American women to the mass consumption of body related services Contrary to notions of beauty service establishments as spaces for building community among women The Managed Hand finds that while tentative and fragile solidarities can emerge across the manicure table they generally give way to even more powerful divisions of race class and immigration
