A Critical Analysis of the Contributions of Notable Black Economists Kojo A. Quartey, 2017-07-05 This book introduces and critically analyzes the achievements of major black economists and their contributions to the realm of economic thought The book begins with a brief overview of the contribution of Africans to philosophy and economic thought and goes on to discuss individuals who have made the most significant contributions to this field There is particular reference to their background and influences including a critical analysis of individual thought Kojo Quartey's book provides an essential supplement to any economic history text Building on the core foundations of Anthropological Economics: Some important extensions of Anthropological Economics Sujay Rao Mandavilli, 2025-05-14 The concepts of anthropological economics were introduced by us in the year 2020 in a paper entitled Introducing Anthropological Economics The quest for an Anthropological basis for Economic theory growth models and policy development for wealth and human welfare maximization and was published in the journal ELK Asia Pacific Journal of Social Sciences Volume 6 Issue 3 April June 2020 The paper was subsequently published in Google books later in the same year We had also published the following papers subsequently and these papers have been compiled into the present volume 1 Delineating Cultural limits and Anthropological limits as central theorems in the social sciences Some more useful and practicable techniques for social sciences research SSRN July 2024 2 Isolating Anthropological factors that determine economic performance or non performance A meritorious way forward in Anthropological Economics SSRN January 2025 3 Measuring economic performance against Cultural limits and Anthropological limits Techniques and strategies for better economic planning and economic modeling SSRN July 2024 4 Expounding the concepts of socio cultural advantage and cultural and anthropological equilibrium More core concepts in Anthropological Economics SSRN May 2025 5 Propounding the science of Motivational economics Another crucial component of the science of Anthropological Economics SSRN May 2025 6 Extolling the virtues of ethnography in economic planning and decision making Mainstreaming Econoethnography in Anthropological Economics The objective of our work on anthropological economics was to attempt to merge the concepts and theoretical frameworks of the disciplines of Anthropology and Economics thereby creating a new sub field in Economics called Anthropological Economics which was mired in Anthropological concepts and principles and sought to maximize not only human welfare and happiness but also wealth maximization across cultures while considering both the psychic unity of man universal human needs and culturespecific factors Thus the field of Anthropological Economics was expected to be inter related to other disciplines of Economics but remain complementary to them i.e. it was not expected that it would intrude into other sub fields of economics replace them or override their principles in any way It would therefore we anticipated draw upon other aspects of economic theory and enrich them suitably It was therefore expected that all aspects of Economic theory would be taken into consideration for policy formulation and decision making including those of Anthropological economics and independent context specific judgment would always be applied The new and novel proposed field of Anthropological Economics proposed to take the idea of Human Welfare to its logical conclusion by extending the work already carried out in various sub disciplines of economics such as those proposed by Amartya Sen and others and integrate it more tightly with various concepts in Anthropology Many new tools and techniques were therefore proposed as a part of our overall work and we believed these would suitably enrich the field of Economics as well While many attempts have been made in the past to integrate the fields of Anthropology and Economics we had hoped our endeavour would take this exercise to a much higher level by creating a new generation of Anthroeconomists We had also hoped it will eventually help move mainstream economics away from Neo classical approaches what we prefer to call legacy economics to Anthropological and human centric approaches The present volume presents our additional and auxiliary concepts in anthropological economics The presented volume must be read after the contents of the previous volume has been fully 4 4 read and ingested We say this in the interests of absolute reader clarity This is because the original paper has not been reproduced here Work Culture In The Banking Industry A Sociological Study Of Three Nationalised Banks In Kolkata Dr Arunava Narayan Mukherjee,
