Supporting Home Learning in the Early Years - Handout

The Value of Home Learning

The quality of the home learning environment is more important for intellectual and social development than parental occupation, education or income. (EPPE Project)

This is an important message to share with parents to help spread awareness of the value of home learning and the significant positive impact every parent can have.

To support parents' home learning it can be useful to be aware of the most common activities parents engage with.

This can include:

- Looking at a book or reading
- Learning songs, poems or nursery rhymes
- Learning numbers or to count
- Learning the alphabet or recognising words
- Painting or drawing

As practitioners we can support parents in these activities by sharing children's developmental goals and best practice. We can also suggest other activities, experiences and pedagogical approaches parents can use to add further depth to home learning.

This could include sharing the value and impact of having conversations with children to help improve

Supporting Early Childhood Practice Through Difficult Times Ute Ward, 2024-08-28. Supporting Early Childhood Practice Through Difficult Times encourages early childhood students and practitioners to take stock of current practices and pedagogies in light of challenges like the COVID-19 pandemic, ecological concerns and regulatory pressures. The contributions from various scholars and practitioners present a range of theoretical concepts as well as innovative practice examples inviting deep reflection on your own beliefs and attitudes. They examine and envisage different ways of working with and for young children, their families and communities for a better future. Chapters in this timely book include experts from around the globe examining key issues in early childhood education. The first section questions the increasing digitalisation in nurseries and pre-schools and its impact on staff, members, parents and children. The second section focuses on workforce development, management systems and the role of parents in policymaking. The third section showcases innovative pedagogical approaches looking beyond widely accepted early learning goals, assessments and curricula to develop inclusive environments that foster all children's development and learning. Lastly, the fourth section steps back from day-to-day practice and considers what concern for the environment, social justice and posthumanism means for early childhood education and pedagogy. This book will be a key resource for early childhood education and care practitioners, graduate students, policymakers and researchers facilitating the step from the

here and now to revised future practice and policy that will enable all children to flourish
