Supports N.J. Habraken, 2021-07-29 First translated in English ten years after its original Dutch publication in 1962 this book has inspired practitioners for generations Its proposal to distinguish the infill from the support what users can individually decide in a housing process from what users share has turned out to be feasible in practice The Natural Relation the interaction of people with their immediate environment and the central concept of the book is the result of that distinction It is essential to the well being of everyday environment regardless of function or available resources

Habraken, 1972      Design for Adaptability in Mass Housing Guopeng Li, 2020-11-05 Before discussing the research itself in greater depth it is beneficial at this stage to introduce the background to the research To do so the chapter is divided into four parts The first part of the chapter summarises terminologies associated with adaptability and goes on to define and elaborate on the meaning of adaptability in this research study The second part of this chapter defines mass housing the development of mass housing and its problems are also illustrated In the third part as the key solution for addressing housing occupants requirements and accommodating changes the importance of adaptability in improving overall housing quality particularly from a social financial and environmental point of view is outlined The sustainability of adaptability is also discussed Even though studies of adaptability have been developed structurally functionally technically and financially adaptability still occupies a marginal position due to the production of mass housing The final part of the chapter rethinks the notion of adaptability for mass housing Factors of mass housing related to social financial technical and design issues and which address adaptability are explored Lastly it is revealed that the design aspect of adaptability is chosen as the research focus in this research study      The New Eco-Architecture: Alternatives from the Modern Movement Colin Porteous, 2013-10-11 The New Eco Architecture builds a historical bridge between architectural science and design It seeks to address neglected aspects of the Modern Movement as a prelude to supporting a diversity of architectural insight and experimentation aimed at twenty first century environmental needs and priorities The attitudes and influences of renowned figures are re examined in relation to current issues of architectural sustainability By setting today s green architectural quest within a twentieth century context and evaluating the main protagonists with regard to a modern eco sensitive lineage the book will be of primary interest to architectural students academics and practitioners However it should also intrigue historians theoreticians and critics who tend to gloss over such issues as well as other disciplines engaged with the built environment      Discrimination by Design Leslie Weisman, 1994 Discrimination by Design is a fascinating account of the complex social processes and power struggles involved in building and controlling space Leslie Kanes Weisman offers a new framework for understanding the spatial dimensions of gender and race as well as class She traces the social and architectural histories of the skyscraper maternity hospital department store shopping mall nuclear family dream house and public housing high rise Her vivid prose is based on exhaustive research and documents how each setting along with public parks and streets embodies and transmits the privileges and penalties of social caste In presenting feminist themes from a spatial perspective Weisman raises many new and important questions When do women feel unsafe in cities and why Why do so many homeless people prefer to sleep on the streets rather than in city run shelters Why does the current housing crisis pose a greater threat to women than to men How would dwellings communities and public buildings look if they were designed to foster relationships of equality and environmental wholeness And how can we begin to imagine such a radically different landscape In exploring the answers the author introduces us to the people policies architectural innovations and ideologies working today to shape a future in which all people matter Richly illustrated with photographs and drawings Discrimination by Design is an invaluable and pioneering contribution to our understanding of the issues of our time health care for the elderly and people with AIDS homelessness racial justice changing conditions of work and family life affordable housing militarism energy conservation and the preservation of the environment This thoroughly readable book provides practical guidance to policymakers architects planners and housing activists It should be read by all who are interested in understanding how the built environment shapes the experiences of their daily lives and the cultural assumptions in which they are immersed Future Forms and Design For Sustainable Cities Mike Jenks, Nicola Dempsey, 2006-08-11

Concentrating on the planning and design of cities the three sections take a logical route through the discussion from the broad considerations at regional and city scale to the larger city at high and lower densities through to design considerations on the smaller block scale Key design issues such as access to facilities access for sunlight life cycle analyses and the impact of communications on urban design are tackled and in conclusion the research is compared to large scale design examples that have been proposed and or implemented over the past decade to give a vision for the future that might be achievable transformed and how the first versions were adapted by the building industry. Visits to completed Grow Homes shed light on why such homes were purchased and the process by which they grew. Friedman also shows how the design has been adapted for prefabrication to meet the needs of the developing world. He describes the contribution that small unit design makes to saving valuable natural resources and shares his experiences in planning communities based on the Grow Home. The Grow Home reveals the development and history of a concept that revolutionizes the home and building industry. It has been translated into over 10 000 housing units and has received among many accolades the United Nations World Habitat Award.

Handbook of Anarchism Carl Levy, Matthew S. Adams, 2018-06-22. This handbook unites leading scholars from around the world in exploring anarchism as a political ideology from an examination of its core principles an analysis of its history and an assessment of its contribution to the struggles that face humanity today. Grounded in a conceptual and historical approach each entry charts what is distinctive about the anarchist response to particular intellectual political cultural and social phenomena and considers how these values have changed over time. At its heart is a sustained process of conceptual definition and an extended examination of the core claims of this frequently misunderstood political tradition. It is the definitive scholarly reference work on anarchism as a political ideology and should be a crucial text for scholars students and activists alike. Modern Architecture: A Very Short Introduction Adam Sharr, 2018-11-15 Somewhere between 1910 and 1970 architecture changed. Now that modern architecture has become familiar, sometimes celebrated, sometimes vilified, it's hard to imagine how novel it once seemed. Expensive buildings were transformed from ornamental fancies which referred to the classical and medieval pasts into strikingly plain reflections of novel materials, functions, and technologies. Modern architecture promised the transformation of cities from overcrowded conurbations characterised by packed slums and dirty industries to spacious realms of generous housing and clean mechanised production set in parkland. At certain times and in certain cultures it stood for the liberation of the future from the past. This Very Short Introduction explores the technical innovations that opened up the cultural and intellectual opportunities for modern architecture to happen. Adam Sharr shows how the invention of steel and reinforced concrete radically altered possibilities for shaping buildings, transforming what architects were able to imagine, as did new systems for air conditioning and lighting. While architects weren't responsible for these innovations, they were among the first to appreciate how they could make the world look and feel different in connection with imagery from other spheres like modern art and industrial design. Focusing on a selection of modern buildings that also symbolize bigger cultural ideas, Sharr discusses what modern architecture was like, why it was like that, and how it was imagined. Considering the work of some of the historians and critics who helped to shape modern architecture, he demonstrates how the field owes as much to its storytellers as to its buildings.
