Model Britain David Lund, 2024-10-22 Throughout the twentieth century architectural models served as the miniature playgrounds in which the future of Britain's built environment was imagined and in drawing from the evidence provided by those models today this book considers how architects planners and civil engineers thought about that future by presenting a history of yesterday's dreams of tomorrow told through architectural models Focused not on the making of architectural models but rather the optimistic and utopian visions they were made to communicate this book examines the possible futures put forward by 120 models made by Thorp the oldest and most prolific firm of architectural modelmakers in Britain in order to reveal a century of evolving ideas about how we might live work relax and move From depictions of unbuilt city masterplans to those of seemingly ordinary shopping centres and motorways the models featured trace a progression of the architectural social political technological and economic influences that shaped the design of Britain's buildings transport infrastructure and its towns and cities during a century of relentless change Illustrated with over 130 photographs this book will appeal to academics and historians as well as anyone with an interest in architectural models and the history of Britain's twentieth century built environment

Ideal Homes? Tony Chapman, Jenny Hockey, 2002-09-11 Ideal Homes shows how both popular images and experiences of home life relate to the ability of society's members to produce and respond to social change The book provides for the first time an analysis of the space of the home and the experiences of home life by writers from a wide range of disciplines including sociology architecture geography and anthropology It covers a range of subjects including gender roles different generations relationships to home the changing nature of the family transition and risk and alternative visions of home Histories of Everyday Life Laura

Carter,2021-07-22 Histories of Everyday Life is a study of the production and consumption of popular social history in mid twentieth century Britain It explores how non academic historians many of them women developed a new breed of social history after the First World War identified as the history of everyday life The history of everyday life was a pedagogical construct based on the perceived educational needs of the new mass democracy that emerged after 1918 It was popularized to ordinary people in educational settings through books in classrooms and museums and on BBC radio After tracing its development and dissemination between the 1920s and the 1960s this book argues that history of everyday life declined in the 1970s not because academics invented an alternative new social history but because bottom up social change rendered this form of popular social history untenable in the changing context of mass education Histories of Everyday Life ultimately uses the subject of history to demonstrate how profoundly the advent of mass education shaped popular culture in Britain after 1918 arguing that we should see the twentieth century as Britain s educational century Women and the Making of

Spectacular Television Helen Wheatley, 2016-06-20 In terms of visual impact television has often been regarded as inferior to cinema It has been characterised as sound led and consumed by a distracted audience Today it is tempting to see the rise of HD television as ushering in a new era of spectacular television Yet since its earliest days the medium has been epitomised by spectacle and offered its viewers diverse forms of visual pleasure Looking at the early promotion of television and the launch of colour broadcasting Spectacular Television traces a history of television as spectacular attraction from its launch to the contemporary age of surround sound digital effects and HD screens In focusing on the spectacle of nature landscape and even our own bodies on television via explorations of popular television dramas documentary series and factual entertainment and ambitious natural history television Helen Wheatley answers the questions what is televisual pleasure and how has television defined its own brand of spectacular aesthetics

Form Follows Fun Bruce Peter, 2013-05-13 Authoritative and readable this excellent text illustrated by a unique pictorial record of period architecture surveys and examines how and why the architecture of pleasure related to the stylistic and ideological concerns of modernism in 1930s Britain Responding to the current interest in modernism and packed with a substantial archive of high quality photographs and other documentation it relates the professional entrepreneurial and institutional infrastructures affecting the pleasure industry s architectural development and appearance in 1930s A broad range of building through which the general public first experienced Modernism are covered including commercial holiday camps cinemas and greyhound racing stadia municipal and governmental projects zoos seaside

pavilions concert halls and imperial and international exhibitions Arguing that the responses to modernism through the architecture of pleasure were conditioned by wider debates about the role of design in relation to high and mass culture this book is an ideal resource for all those interested in architectural history and design in Britain between the wars

Conflicted Identities Alexandra Staub, 2015-10-23 Nation states have long used representational architecture to create symbolic identities for public consumption both at home and abroad Government buildings major ensembles and urban plans have a visibility that lends them authority while their repeated portrayals in the media cement their image as icons of a shared national character Existing in tandem with this official self however is a second often divergent identity represented by the vast realm of domestic space defined largely by those who occupy it as well as those with a vested interest in its cultural meaning Using both historical inquiry and visual spatial and film analysis this book explores the interaction of these two identities and its effect on political control class status and gender roles Conflicted Identities examines the politicization of both public and domestic space especially in societies undergoing rapid cultural transformation through political social or economic expansion or restructuring when cultural identity is being rapidly modernized shifted or realigned to conform to new demands Using specific examples from a variety of national contexts the book examines how vernacular housing legislation marketing and media influence a large but often underexposed domestic culture that runs parallel to a more publicly represented one As a case in point the book examines West Germany from the end of World War II to the early 1970s to probe more deeply into the mechanisms of such cultural dichotomy On a national level post war West Germany demonstratively rejected Nazi era values by rebuilding cities based on interwar modernist tenets while choosing a decidedly modern and transparent architecture for high visibility national projects In the domestic realm government media and everyday citizens countered this turn to state sponsored modernism by embracing traditional architectural aesthetics and housing that encouraged patriarchal family structures Written for readers interested in cultural theory history and the politics of space as well as those engaged with architecture and the built environment Conflicted Identities provides an engaging new perspective on power and identity as they relate to architectural settings

Making Sense of Suburbia Through Popular Culture Rupa Huq, 2013-08-15 This book explores how notions of suburbia have developed in our collective imagination examining novels cinema popular music and television in the US and UK

Buying for the Home Margaret Ponsonby, 2017-03-02 Buying for the Home is a book about the experiences and also the polarities of shopping and the home It analyses the ways in which the agencies and discourses of the retail environment mesh with the processes of physical and imaginative re creation that constitute the domestic space teasing out the negotiations and interactions that mediate this key arena The study examines how the strategies of retailers were both arbitrated by and negotiated through the actions and desires of the homemaker as consumer Drawing on the recent CHORD Centre for the History of Retail and Distribution colloquium on shopping and the domestic environment and including two specially commissioned pieces the book draws on a wide selection of interdisciplinary work from established scholars and new researchers Organised around four key themes retail arenas and the everyday identity and lifestyle fashioning domestic space and cultural practice the ten case studies cover a range of cultural encounters and locations from the seventeenth to the late twentieth century Through these interdisciplinary but linked case studies Buying for the Home forces us to consider the fractured space that existed between the world of goods and the middle and working class home and in so doing interrogate how middle class and plebeian homemakers view imagine and ultimately occupy their domestic spaces in early modern modern and post modern society

Alison and Peter Smithson Alison Smithson, Peter Smithson, Beatriz Colomina, Design Museum (London, England), 2004 Striving to adapt the progressive ideas of the pre war modern movement to the specific human needs of post war reconstruction Alison and Peter Smithson were among the most influential and controversial architects of the latter half of the twentieth century As younger members of CIAM Congr s Internationaux d Architecture Moderne and as founding members of Team 10 they were at the heart of the debate on the future course of Modern Architecture Their polemics and designs addressing issues such as the rising consumer society and the orientation of urban planning laid the foundations for New Brutalism and the Pop Art Movement of the 1960s An important adaptation made by the Smithsons and their generation was the rejection of modernism s machine aesthetics The new notions of place and territory were juxtaposed to Le Corbusier s machine habiter To the Smithsons a house was a particular place which should be suited to its location and able to meet the ordinary requirements of everyday life and to accommodate its inhabitants individual patterns of use This exhibition examines the evolution of the Smithsons approach to this everyday art of inhabitation It does this by extensively documenting most of their designs for individual dwellings especially their optimistic House of the Future of 1956 and the series of renovations of and additions to the fairy tale like Hexenhaus in Germany from the late 1980s onward architectural ideas by second generation modernist architects and designers Through a series of case study houses designed by Wood s firm the book reconsiders the progress of modern domestic architecture in Britain and demonstrates the ways in which architectural discourse and practice intersected with the experience performance and representation of domestic modernity in post war Britain

Sustainable Urban Neighbourhood David Rudlin,Nicholas Falk,2010-05-14 This successful title previously known as Building the 21st Century Home and now in its second edition explores and explains the trends and issues that underlie the renaissance of UK towns and cities and describes the sustainable urban neighbourhood as a model for rebuilding urban areas The book reviews the way that planning policies architectural trends and economic forces have undermined the viability of urban areas in Britain since the Industrial Revolution Now that much post war planning philosophy is being discredited we are left with few urban models other than garden city inspired suburbia Are these appropriate in the 21st century given environmental concerns demographic change social and economic pressures The authors suggest that these trends point to a very different urban future The authors argue that we must reform our towns and cities so that they become attractive humane places where people will choose to live The Sustainable Urban Neighbourhood is a model for such reform and the book describes what this would look like and how it might be brought about
