

SUPERSTITION Murder Club

A woman is lying on her back in a swimming pool, her legs crossed at the ankles. She is holding a large, white, wide-brimmed sun hat over her face, completely obscuring it. The water in the pool is a vibrant blue with visible ripples. The scene is set outdoors on a sunny day, with a sandy beach visible at the bottom of the frame.

Superstition in All Ages (Unabridged Large Print) Jean Meslier, 2011-03-01 Large Print 17 point font What are these boasted resources of the Christ worshipers Their morality It is the same as in all religions but their cruel dogmas produced and taught persecution and trouble Their miracles But what people has not its own and what wise men do not disdain these fables Their prophecies Have we not shown their falsity Their morals Are they not often infamous The establishment of their religion but did not fanaticism begin and has not intrigue visibly sustained this edifice The doctrine but is it not the height of absurdity From the Preface This work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind which the last century produced Paine and Voltaire had reserves but Jean Meslier had none He keeps nothing back and yet after all the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death but that all priests do not True there is a great deal more to be said about religion which I believe to be an eternal necessity of human nature but no man has uttered the negative side of the matter with so much candor and completeness as Jean Meslier The value of the testimony of a catholic priest who in his last moments recanted the errors of his faith and asked God s pardon for having taught the catholic religion was fully appreciated by Voltaire who highly commended this grand work of Meslier He voluntarily made every effort to increase its circulation and even complained to D Alembert that there were not as many copies in all Paris as he himself had dispersed throughout the mountains of Switzerland
