Supervision And Surveillance The Powers Of The Financial Services Authority:

Supervision and Surveillance Charles Chatterjee, Anna Lefcovitch, 2001-01-01 This comprehensive reference book offers a unique account of the development of regulation within UK financial services as well as providing a detailed summary of statutes and case law In addition to providing an unrivalled summary of the evolution and extent of regulatory powers it also discusses the issues surrounding high profile bank collapses of the last two decades as a means of explaining the origins of today's regulatory powers Legal Aspects of Financial Services Regulation and the Concept of a Unified Regulator Kenneth Kaoma Mwenda, 2006-01-01 That different types of financial services and products continue to spring up in the financial sector of many countries is indicative of the changing landscape of the financial services industry globally Equally important as indicators of the evolving trajectory of financial services regulation are increases in the number of countries where universal banking is practiced and in numbers of parent and subsidiary companies providing different types of financial services and products This book is written against that background A central thesis pursued in the book is that until there is a longer track record of experience with unified regulators it is difficult to come to firm conclusions about the restructuring process of regulators and the optimal internal structure of such agencies In addition the book examines the concept of an independent regulator showing how this concept as a corollary to the concept of a unified regulator could strengthen the regulatory and institutional framework for financial services supervision if accountability were to be part of such a framework

The Rise of the Indonesian Financial Service Authority Chandra Kusuma, 2022-08-17 This book focuses on the Indonesian Financial Service Authority FSA which is a newly established authority within Indonesian financial services institutions that has emerged as the ultimate decision maker for portfolio investment liberalization In doing so the book elaborates on how the emergence of the Indonesian FSA has resulted in implementation gaps in Indonesia in the area of portfolio investment liberalization The book reveals that the endowment of an independent and free status as well as the FSA's power over the Indonesian financial sector has allowed agents in the FSA to provide different positions or responses to the already agreed ASEAN financial liberalization initiatives Contrary to the expectations of most writers that the independent status of an institution would advance financial liberalization this book shows that the independent and free status of the Indonesian FSA has actually stymied financial liberalization To achieve this the book employs a modified account of the historical institutionalism approach or the agents in context approach examining how and why the Indonesian FSA has emerged as an independent authority The insights drawn from applying a modified historical institutionalism approach to the case study of Indonesian portfolio investment liberalization critiques and complements existing works in the regionalism literature in general and ASEAN financial integration particularly potential of relevant institutions and finally develops a policy perspective It seeks to provide a framework for analysing options for the regulation of international financial markets from a public international law and comparative law perspective
