

The book cover features a stylized, high-contrast portrait of a woman. The image is split diagonally from the top right to the bottom left. The left side of the portrait is rendered in a cool color palette of pinks, purples, and blues, with the woman's hair appearing as a vibrant red. The right side is in a warm color palette of yellows, oranges, and reds. The woman's face is partially obscured by the diagonal line, and her expression is contemplative. The title 'MURIEL SPARK' is printed in a large, white, sans-serif font across the top left, and 'THE COMFORTERS' is printed in a similar font across the middle right.

Modernism and the Machinery of Madness demonstrates the emergence of a technological form of paranoia within modernist culture which transformed much of the period's experimental fiction Gaedtke argues that the works of writers such as Samuel Beckett Anna Kavan Wyndham Lewis Mina Loy Evelyn Waugh and others respond to the collapse of categorical distinctions between human and machine Modern British and Irish novels represent a convergence between technological models of the mind and new media that were often regarded as thought influencing machines Gaedtke shows that this literary paranoia comes into new focus when read in light of twentieth century memoirs of mental illness By thinking across the discourses of experimental fiction mental illness psychiatry cognitive science and philosophy of mind this book shows the historical and conceptual sources of this confusion as well as the narrative responses This book contributes to the fields of modernist studies disability studies and medical humanities A Grain of Faith Allan Hepburn,2018-11-22 During and after the Second World War there was a concerted thinking about religion in Britain Not only were leading international thinkers of the day theologians Ronald Niebuhr Paul Tillich Jacques Maritain but leading writers contributed to discussions about religion Graham Greene Muriel Spark and Barbara Pym incorporated miracles evil and church going into their novels while Louis MacNeice T S Eliot and C S Lewis gave radio broadcasts about the role of Christianity in contemporary society Certainly the war revived interest in aspects of Christian life Salvation and redemption were on many people s minds The Ministry of Information used images of bombed churches to stoke patriotic fervour and King George VI led a series of Days of National Prayer that coincided with crucial events in the Allied campaign After the war and throughout the 1950s approximately 1 4 million Britons converted to Roman Catholicism as a way of expressing their spiritual ambitions and solidarity with humanity on a world wide scale Religion provided one way for writers to answer the question what is man It also afforded ways to think about social obligation and ethical engagement Moreover the mid century turn to religion offered ways to articulate statehood not from the perspective of nationhood and politics but from the perspective of moral action and social improvement Instead of being a retreat into seclusion and solitude the mid century turn to religion is a call to responsibility The History of British Women's Writing, 1945-1975 Clare Hanson,Susan Watkins,2017-09-14 This volume reshapes our understanding of British literary culture from 1945 1975 by exploring the richness and diversity of women s writing of this period Essays by leading scholars reveal the range and intensity of women writers engagement with post war transformations including the founding of the Welfare State the gradual liberalization of attitudes to gender and sexuality and the reconfiguration of Britain and the empire in the context of the Cold War Attending closely to the politics of form the sixteen essays range across literary middlebrow and popular genres including espionage thrillers and historical fiction children s literature and science fiction as well as poetry drama and journalism They examine issues including realism and experimentalism education class and politics the emergence of second wave feminism responses to the Holocaust and mass migration and diaspora The volume offers an exciting reassessment of women s writing at a time of radical social change and rapid cultural expansion Foundations of Religious Literacy John V.
