Political Economy of Tax Reform Takatoshi Ito, Anne O. Krueger, 2007-12-01 The rapid emergence of East Asia as an important geopolitical economic entity has been one of the most visible and striking changes in the international economy in recent years. With that emergence has come an increased need for understanding the problems of interdependence. As a step toward meeting this need, the National Bureau of Economic Research joined with the Korea Development Institute to sponsor this volume which focuses on the complexities of tax reform in a global economy. Experts from Taiwan, Korea, the Philippines, Japan, and Thailand, as well as the United States, Canada, and Israel, examine the major tax programs of the 1980s and their domestic and international economic effects. The analyses reveal similarities between the United States and countries in East Asia in political constraints on policy making, and taken together they show how growing interdependence interacts with domestic economic and political concerns to affect issues as politically vital as tax reform. Economists, policymakers, and members of the business community will benefit from these studies.

The Role of Taxation in Economic Development Frederick Chung-hsi Chow, 1980

The Role of the State in Taiwan's Development Joel D. Aberdach, 2015-05-20 These essays are a product of a cooperative research project between American and Taiwanese social scientists. Of particular interest is the chapter discussing a comparative study of industrial policy, productivity growth, and structural change in manufacturing.

The Green Fiscal Mechanism and Reform for Low Carbon Development Akihisa Mori, Paul Ekins, Stefan Speck, Soo-Cheol Lee, Kazuhiro Ueta, 2013-10-30 This book reviews how far East Asian nations have implemented green fiscal reform and shows how they can advance carbon energy tax reform to realize low carbon development, with special reference to European policy and experience. East Asian nations are learning European experiences to adopt them in their political, economic, and institutional contexts. However, implementation has been slow in practice, partly due to low acceptability that comes from the same concerns as in Europe and partly due to weak institutional arrangements for the reform. The slow progress in the revenue side turns our eyes on the expenditure side: how East Asian nations have increased environmental-related expenditures and how far they have greened sectorial expenditures. This lifecycle assessment of the fiscal reform, coupled with the assessment of the institutional arrangement, constitutes the features of this book. The book helps to provide an overall picture of green fiscal reform and carbon energy tax reform in the East Asian region. The region has a variety of countries from lowest income to high income nations. Nations have different interests, substance, and barriers for reform. This book covers recent development of environmental fiscal reform and carbon energy taxation in wider nations in the region, including South Korea, Taiwan, Thailand, Vietnam, Indonesia, and Japan. In addition, the book's holistic view helps to understand why a specific nation has interest and concern on some aspects of the reforms.

The Evolution of Policy Behind Taiwan's Development Success Guoding Li, Gustav Ranis, John C. H.
