Social Psychology of Self-Referent Behavior Howard B. Kaplan, 2013-11-11 This book is about human behavior and more particularly about a class of human behaviors those behaviors by people that have themselves as the object of their behaviors These self referent behaviors are social in nature in the sense that in large measure they are the outcomes of pervasive social processes and are themselves major influences on social outcomes As such self referent behaviors have the potential to be significant organizing constructs in the study of the broader field of social psychology In any case they are regarded here as of intrinsic interest and are the focus of this volume Four broad categories of self referent behaviors are considered with regard to their social bases and consequences as these are revealed in the social psychological and sociological literature With appropriate discriminations made within each group ing the four categories are self conceiving self evaluating self feeling and self protective self enhancing responses Following a consideration of the social antecedents and consequences of each category of self referent behaviors I present a final

summary statement that outlines a theoretical model of the additive and interactive social influences on and consequences of the mutually influential self referent behaviors The outline of the theoretical model reflects my synthesis of the apparently relevant theoretical and empirical literature and is intended to function as a framework for the orderly incorporation of new theoretical assertions and more or less apparently relevant empirical associations
