Co-production and Criminal Justice Diana Johns, Catherine Flynn, Maggie Hall, Claire Spivakovsky, Shelley Turner, 2022-08-09 This book explores practical examples of co production in criminal justice research and practice Through a series of seven case studies the authors examine what people do when they co produce knowledge in criminal justice contexts in prisons and youth detention centres with criminalised women from practitioners perspectives and with First Nations communities Co production holds a promise that people whose lives are entangled in the criminal justice system can be valued as participants and partners helping to shape how the system works But how realistic is it to imagine criminal justice service users participating partnering and sharing genuine decision making power with those explicitly holding power over them Taking a sophisticated yet accessible theoretical approach the authors consider issues of power hierarchy and different ways of knowing to understand the perils and possibilities of co production under the shadow of justice In exploring these complexities this book brings cautious optimism to co production partners and project leaders The book provides a foundational text for scholars and practitioners seeking to apply co production principles in their research and practice With stories from Australia the United Kingdom and Ireland the text will appeal to the international community For students of criminology and social work the book s critical insights will enhance their work in the field
