

SITE PLANNING AND DESIGN FOR THE ELDERLY

The background of the cover is a detailed architectural site plan. It features several rectangular building footprints, some with internal room divisions. A network of paths or roads winds through the site, connecting different areas. Numerous circular symbols of varying sizes are scattered throughout, representing trees or landscaping elements. The drawing is rendered in a light, sketchy style, typical of preliminary site planning.

Compensating for Psychological Deficits and Declines Roger A. Dixon, Lars B., ckman, Lars Backman, 2013-06-17 The concept of compensation in psychology refers to processes through which a gap or mismatch between current accessible skills and environmental demands is reduced or closed These gaps can be principally the result of losses such as those associated with aging or interpersonal role changes injuries such as those that may occur to the neurological or sensory systems organic or functional diseases such as the dementias or schizophrenia and congenital deficits such as those apparent in autism or some learning disabilities Whether the demand skill gaps can be bridged completely reduced only moderately or are impossible to close depends on a variety of factors In every case however the guiding notions of compensation are that some such deficits may be amendable the continuation of the effects of the gap may be avoidable and some functioning may be recoverable In this sense compensation is related to adaptation it is about overcoming deficits managing the effects of losses and promoting improvement in psychological functioning Compensation is a concept that has a long and rich history in numerous domains of psychological research and practice To date however few of the relevant research domains have benefitted explicitly or optimally from considering alternative perspectives on the concept of compensation Although researchers and practitioners in several areas of psychology have actively pursued programs with compensation as a central concept communication across disciplinary divides has been lacking Comparing and contrasting the uses and implications of the concept across neighboring and even not so adjacent areas of psychology can promote advances in both theoretical and practical pursuits The goal of this book is to carry inchoate integrative efforts to a new level of clarity To this end the editors have recruited major authors from selected principal areas of research and practice in psychological compensation The authors review the current state of compensation scholarship in their domains of specialization State of the art reviews of this rapidly expanding area of scholarship are therefore collected under one cover for the first time In this way a wide variety of readers who might otherwise rarely cross professional paths with one another can quickly learn about alternative preferences agendas and methods as well as novel research results interpretations and practical applications Designed to contain broad deep and current perspectives on compensation this volume continues the processes of explicating the concept of compensation linking and distinguishing compensation from neighboring concepts describing the variety of compensatory mechanisms operating in a wide range of phenomena and illustrating how compensatory mechanisms can be harnessed or trained to manage losses or deficits and to promote gains or at least maintenance of functioning

Planning for an Aging Society Deborah A. Howe, Nancy J. Chapman, Sharon Baggett, 1994 The demographics of the United States are gradually changing Americans are living longer and having fewer children By the year 2030 more than 20 percent of the population will be age 65 or older As a result society faces a newly pressing need for elder housing This report explains the physical and psychological needs of the elderly The authors give an overview of the processes that affect perception and ability as we age They then move to the wants and needs of the elderly most notably the desire to remain in their own homes or neighborhoods Strategies such as elder cottages accessory apartments and innovative financial plans are presented as ways for seniors to both remain independent and enjoy a high standard of living Sections on manufactured housing site planning transit and the fiscal impact of high concentrations of elderly persons complete the discussion A great overview of possible options on a topic that every planner should be considering

Aging in Israel Sara Carmel, 2017-07-12 In the twentieth century all developed nations began to undergo unprecedented demographic changes as their birth rates declined and life expectancies increased significantly an average of thirty years in less than a century These developments have caused major transformations in the composition of populations in these countries especially in terms of the proportions of the various age groups While the age groups of children and adolescents have decreased those of elderly persons aged 65 and over have increased Consistent with the situation in other developed nations the absolute number and percentage of elderly persons in the Israeli population is increasing while the percentage of younger persons is decreasing Israel however differs from other developed countries in the pace of this demographic change the composition of its population and the ways it can address needs related to aging The demographic figures in Israel indicate that not only is the proportion of elderly persons in the total population growing but that the old population itself is rapidly aging as well This volume exemplifies how social science research can promote knowledge about and understanding of needs and opportunities for adaptation and assist in evaluating the outcomes of policies and services on the personal community and national levels as well as suggest required changes The variety of topics covered in this volume on age related research policies and practice reflects a wide range of research by Israeli scholars on social aspects of aging Their research offers a glimpse into the knowledge base that has been built over the years on the aging process in Israel the population of elderly people and the national policies and network of services for the aged Other developed countries with aging populations have much to learn from the Israeli experience      Design Intervention

(Routledge Revivals) Wolfgang F. E. Preiser, Jacqueline Vischer, Edward White, 2015-05-15 Design Intervention Toward a More Humane Architecture first published in 1991 intends to demonstrate that interest in social issues is alive and well in architecture that there is a small but effective cadre of dedicated professionals who continue to commit themselves to solving social problems and that architecture is being applied to the alleviation of the social ills of our time The editors and contributors in this book have all grappled with their own definitions of design innovation and express in practical and useful ways their ideas for contributing to a better and less needy world through the architecture they describe This book will be of interest to students of architecture      The Sustainable Sites Handbook Meg Calkins, 2011-11-01 Get the definitive resource
